University of Pennsylvania
254TH COMMEMCENMENT

Monday, May 17
celebrate
In the words of one elegiac tribute, “Great men have two lives: one which occurs while they work on this earth; a second which begins at the day of their death and continues as long as their ideas and conceptions remain powerful.”

These words befit the great Benjamin Franklin, whose inventions, innovations, ideas, writings, and public works continue to shape our thinking and renew the Republic he helped to create and the institutions he founded, including the University of Pennsylvania.

Nowhere does Franklin feel more contemporary, more revolutionary, and more alive than at the University of Pennsylvania. His startling vision of a secular, nonsectarian Academy that would foster an “Inclination join’d with an Ability to serve Mankind, one’s Country, Friends and Family” has never ceased to challenge Penn to redefine the scope and mission of the modern American university.

When pursued vigorously and simultaneously, the two missions – developing the inclination to do good and the ability to do well – merge to help form a more perfect university that educates more capable citizens for our democracy.

Penn has embodied and advanced Franklin’s revolutionary vision for 270 years. Throughout its history, Penn has extended the frontiers of higher learning and research to produce graduates and scholars whose work has enriched the nation and all of humanity.

The modern liberal arts curriculum as we know it can trace its roots to Franklin’s innovation to have Penn students study international commerce and foreign languages.

The first medical and business schools in the United States were launched here.

And the first general-purpose electronic, digital computer – ENIAC – was invented right here at the University of Pennsylvania.

At Penn, the never-ending quest for innovation and academic distinction has found perfect Franklinian expression in “The Penn Compact,” President Amy Gutmann’s bold vision for propelling our University from excellence to eminence in all our core endeavors. Fulfilling the goals of the Compact – increasing access for talented students of all backgrounds, integrating knowledge across multiple disciplines, and engaging our knowledge with communities locally and globally – is the focus of Penn’s current $3.5 billion Making History campaign, and will position the University to make the greatest possible contribution to our society and our world.

Today, Penn proudly graduates a class of men and women who have shown the intelligence, drive, integrity, and character to become engaged citizens who will serve humanity with distinction. Our Penn graduates are poised to take their place as productive democratic citizens and as just and humane stewards of our world.

In these challenging and perilous times, a world in need of young men and women who are willing to shoulder the moral responsibilities of leadership can look to Penn.

Franklin wrote: “We may make these times better if we bestir ourselves. The noblest question in the world is ‘What good may I do in it?’”

The answer to this question will be furnished by Franklin’s newest heirs, the graduates of 2010.
Guests will find this diagram helpful in locating the approximate seating of the degree candidates. The sequence in which the candidates are presented for degrees is shown on the next page. The list on page 13, detailing the colors of the candidates’ hoods according to their fields of study, may further assist guests in identifying the locations of the various schools.

In case of emergency, evacuation procedures will be announced.

Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn’s early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight’s last gleaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro’ the perilous light
O’er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming.
And the rockets red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O’er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

THE RED AND BLUE
By William J. Goeckel, Class of 1896, and Harry E. Westervelt, Class of 1898

Come all ye loyal classmates now, in hall and campus through,
Lift up your hearts and voices for the royal Red and Blue.
Fair Harvard has her crimson, old Yale her colors too,
But for dear Pennsylvania, we wear the Red and Blue.

(Chorus)
Hurrah! Hurrah! Pennsylvania!
Hurrah for the Red and the Blue;
Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!
Hurrah for the Red and the Blue.

RECESSIONAL
ON Thursday, the first Instant, the public Commencement was held in the College of this City, before a vast Concourse of People, of all Banks and Distinctions; and the Degrees, conferred on this Occasion, were as follows, viz

Bachelors of Arts. Patrick Alison, Thomas Bond, Lindsay Coates, Robert Goldsborough, Whitnel Hill, John Johnston, Thomas Mifflin, Robeson Yorke.

Masters of Arts. Rev. Mr. Jacob Duché, Rev. Mr. James Latta; Josiah Martin, junior, Francis Hopkinson and John Morgan, Esquires; Mr. Hugh Williamson, Mr. Samuel Magaw, and Mr. Joseph Montgomery.

At the same Time also, the honorary Degrees of Master of Arts were conferred on the following Gentlemen, viz. Rev. Mr. Samuel Davies, President of the College in New-Jersey; Rev. Mr. Philip Reading, at Apoquiniminck; Rev. Mr. Thomas Barton, at Lancaster; Rev. Mr. Samuel Cooke, at Shrewsbury; Rev. Mr. Robert M’Kean, at Brunswick; Rev. Mr. Samson Smith, at Chestnut-Level; Rev. Mr. Matthew Wilson, in Kent County.

The Orations, Disputations, and other Academical Exercises, were agreeably intermixed with sundry Anthems and Pieces of Psalmody, sung by the Charity Boys, attended with an Organ, which the Liberality of the Town lately bestowed. At the Close of the whole, the Audience was most delightfully entertained with two Anthems sung by several Ladies and Gentlemen, who have not been ashamed to employ some of their Leisure Hours in learning to celebrate their Maker’s Praises with Grace and Elegance.

One of the Students, who received his Master’s Degree on this Occasion, conducted the Organ with that bold and masterly Hand, for which he is celebrated; and several of the Pieces were also his own Composition. In a Word, the whole gave great Satisfaction to strangers as well as others; and certainly such Improvements in useful Science and polite Arts, in this Part of the World, must give a very high Pleasure to every ingenuous Mind.

The University of Pennsylvania proudly proclaims itself one of the “ancient Ivies” and indeed, it is. In 1760, there were just six institutions of higher education in the American colonies and Penn had already been among them for more than a decade. Benjamin Franklin had been Penn’s founder and first builder. In 1749 he had called for the establishment of a “Public Academy in the City of Philadelphia” and organized a group of Philadelphia’s wealthiest and most prominent citizens as Trustees for the accomplishment of that purpose. In 1750 he led the Trustees in acquiring control of a bankrupt 1740 educational trust fund and its substantial, but unfinished building. In January 1751, after nearly a year of construction and preparation, the Academy’s first students enrolled and the first faculty began to teach. In September of that same year, the obligations of the educational trust fund were met when, in the same building, Franklin and the Trustees opened a charity school for the children of Philadelphia’s working poor.

From the moment of their inception, both the Academy and the Charitable School flourished. Franklin and other Trustees brought this to the attention of Thomas and Richard Penn, the brothers who had inherited the Province of Pennsylvania from their father and who were formally known as the “Proprietaries and Governors in Chief” of the Province. In 1753 the Penns rewarded Franklin’s initiative by granting a corporate charter to the “Trustees of the Academy and Charitable School in the Province of Pennsylvania” and by making 250 YEARS AGO: Francis Hopkinson (1737-1791) was one of the most talented and most distinguished of Penn’s 18th century graduates. A member of the first graduating class, that of 1757, he afterwards trained in the law, served in the Continental Congress, and signed the Declaration of Independence. He was also an accomplished artist, musician, and playwright. It was he who played the new organ at the Commencement of 1760 and who, according to the newspaper’s account, “conducted the Organ with that bold and masterly Hand, for which he is celebrated; and several of the Pieces were also his own Composition.” Engraving by James Barton Longacre from a painting by Robert Edge Pine.

The Trustees, attended by the Provost, Vice Provost, Professors and Masters and the Candidates for Degrees, all in their Gowns, walked in orderly procession from the Apparatus Room to the public Hall and after Prayers read by the Reverend Mr. Peters, the Students were Examined, part in the forenoon and part in the afternoon, before large Audiences, and having acquitted themselves to the Satisfaction of the Trustees, it was their unanimous Opinion that they should be admitted to their first Degree at the next Commencement, which was appointed to be held on Thursday, the first day of May next.

The Commencement of 1760

TWO HUNDRED FIFTY YEARS AGO

250 YEARS AGO: William Smith (1727-1803), who officiated at the Commencement of 1760, was named Professor of Logic, Rhetoric, Ethics and Natural Philosophy in 1754 and served as Provost of the College from 1755 until 1779 and a second time from 1789 to 1791. The annual commencement of the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania took place yesterday afternoon, at the Musical Fund Hall. Prior to the commencement exercises, the graduates, professors, trustees, &c., gathered in the rotunda of the University building, to take part in the ceremony of presenting to the board of trustees the portrait of George B. Wood, M.D., LL.D., professor of medicine and clinical medicine, on the occasion of his retirement from the chair he had so long occupied. Dr. J. Campbell Shorb, of Maryland, made the presentation speech. After referring to the retirement of Professor Wood, and the regret of the class at hearing of his intention to leave the chair he had occupied so long, he said: “It was under the promptings of this feeling that a meeting was called in the University on the evening of the 29th of November. A preamble was read expressive of the deep regret of the class at the departure of Dr. Wood, of our lasting gratitude to him, and of our desire that, as a parting legacy, he would allow us to have his portrait painted and placed in the Wistar and Horner Museum. Resolutions were read and adopted appointing a committee to convey to Dr. Wood the wishes of the class. In a kind and grateful letter, he granted our request; the painting was immediately commenced, and finished some four or five weeks since.”

After the ceremony of presenting the portrait was concluded, the graduates formed in procession and, preceded by the professors and officers of the University, they proceeded to Musical Fund Hall, where they were greeted by a full audience, of which a very large portion was composed of ladies. After the performance of appropriate music, prayer was offered by Rev. Albert Barnes. John F. Frazer, LL.D., Vice Provost of the institution, then conferred the degree of Doctor of Medicine upon the following-named gentlemen:

[The reporter then listed the names of the 169 graduates, with the states of their respective residences.]

The Valedictory Address was delivered to the graduates by Dr. Joseph Carson, Professor of Materia Medica and Pharmacy.

He congratulated the graduates on having, at last, reached the object of their hopes. He spoke at length, of the practice and science of medicine, of its advance, and of the relations existing between the physician and his patient.

At the conclusion of the valedictory, the audience separated, after a benediction and music.

The Commencements of 1860 show clearly the rise of professional education at Penn in the mid-19th century, particularly the forging of a major enterprise by the School of Medicine. The School’s faculty had proprietary control of the institution: they collected tuition, paid the School’s expenses, and divided the profits among themselves. They had grown the number of the School’s graduates from less than ten in 1795 to sixty-five in 1810, to 111 in 1825, to 168 in 1840, and then held steady at about 170 for the past two decades. In the 1859-60 academic year the School of Medicine enrolled 528 students, representing twenty-three states, the District of Columbia, and seven foreign countries. The faculty had funded the design and construction of the medical buildings on the Ninth Street campus and they supplemented their lectures with clinical instruction at the Pennsylvania Hospital, at Eighth and Spruce Streets, just four blocks away. In short, the School of Medicine conducted its affairs largely independent of the Provost and the Trustees of the University. Until the final decade of the 19th century the unique status of the School was well illustrated by its academic calendar – considerably shorter than that of the College – and its stand-alone annual commencement.

In 1860 the School of Medicine combined its commencement with a ceremony honoring the retirement of its senior professor of medicine, George Bacon Wood. Wood was much more than a medical professor; he was more nearly a medical statesman. He was Penn educated, with degrees from both the College and the School of Medicine. He been a member of the medical faculty for twenty-five years, during which time he had also been Attendant Physician of the Pennsylvania Hospital. He was President of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia, a past President of the American Medical Association and in 1859 had been elected President of the American Philosophical Society. In 1863 he would be elected a Trustee of the University and in 1865 he would endow the School of Medicine. The medical Class of 1860, in commissioning a portrait of George Bacon Wood and donating it to the University, had justly recognized one of the great 19th-century figures at the University of Pennsylvania.

The School of Medicine conducted its 1860 commencement in a manner more familiar to us today than did the College. The ceremony’s emphasis was not so much the academic attainments of the students – though the conferring of the M.D. degree certainly acknowledged that achievement. The emphasis was rather on the commencement speaker and the significance of his address for the newly-credentialed graduates. By 1860 Joseph Carson had been a member of the School’s faculty for ten years, serving throughout that time as Professor of Materia Medica and Pharmacy. Perhaps more importantly, at least on this occasion, he was George Bacon Wood’s protégé. Carson was an able and accomplished scientific thinker and writer. He had edited the American Journal of Pharmacy for fourteen years. In 1865 he would author and publish the centennial history of the School of Medicine. On this occasion, however, his aim was to inspire in the School’s graduates a life-long dedication to the highest ideals of the medical profession. The long quotation from his address, which was published in the Philadelphia newspapers and quoted above, strongly suggests that his oratorical skills were thought equal to the task. Joseph Carson was the model of the modern commencement speaker.

The commencement of the Department of Arts of the University of Pennsylvania took place yesterday morning, in the presence of a large audience, at the Musical Fund Hall. The faculty and students walked in procession from the college building to the Hall, which they reached about ten o’clock. Some choice music by the Germania Orchestra preceded the opening of the exercises. After a prayer, the order of exercises was as follows: Greek Salutatory Oration, David B. Willson; “Utilitarianism,” Theodore H. Reaktir; “Mountains,” Woodruff Jones; “The Caesars and Napoleons,” Archibald H. Engle; “The Diamond Necklace,” George W. Powell; “The Just Aims of Youth,” George M. Bredin; “The Dissolution of Empires,” Robert White; “Non Sibi, sed Bono Publico,” Charles Morrison.

The Degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on Rev. James Lloyd Breck. The Valedictory was delivered by William W. White.

150 YEARS AGO: George Bacon Wood (1797-1879), honoree at the Medical Commencement of 1860, was Professor in the School of Medicine, first, of Materia Medica and Pharmacy (from 1835 to 1850) and second, of the Theory and Practice of Medicine and of Clinical Medicine (from 1850 to 1860). After retiring from the faculty, he was elected a Trustee of the University, serving in that capacity from 1863 until his death, in 1879. Oil on canvas portrait by Samuel B. Waugh, 1860.

150 YEARS AGO: Medical Hall on the Ninth Street Campus. In 1828 the faculty of the School of Medicine engaged a prominent Philadelphia architect, William Strickland, to design a new Medical Hall. Construction began in February 1829 and was completed in October of that year. Medical education at Penn was conducted in this building until the School moved to West Philadelphia in 1873. In this view, which dates to ca. 1870, the photographer stood on the east side of Ninth Street and turned his camera southwest in order to document the east and north facades of the building. The most striking feature of the University Commencement of 1860 was its adherence to tradition. The ceremony of July 1860 was virtually indistinguishable from that of a century earlier. The public procession in academic garb, the entrance into a grand auditorium, the accompanying music, the initial student address in Greek, the six student addresses in English, the conferring of degrees, and the valedictory were all borrowed directly from Penn’s first commencements. Likewise, the undergraduate curriculum in 1860 was little different from its counterpart in 1760. While professional education – led by the School of Medicine, but by 1860 also including the Law School and the School of Engineering and Applied Science – was transforming the landscape of American universities, the liberal arts and sciences were mired in the past. Another generation would pass before this too would change.

FIFTY YEARS AGO:

The Commencements of 1960

During the middle years of the twentieth century, Penn held two, regular graduation ceremonies: the Mid-Year Convocation and the annual Commencement. The University typically conferred several hundred degrees at the Mid-Year Convocation, which permitted it to be held in Irvine Auditorium. The annual Commencement was much the larger of the two – the University typically conferred more than 2,000 degrees – and it was held in the Municipal Auditorium (where the Ruth and Raymond Perelman Center for Advanced Medicine now stands). The traditions observed at both events were similar in several respects to those held by the College a century and two centuries earlier – the participants still dressed in academic regalia; the procession, accompanied by music, was still an extraordinary parade; the awarding of degrees still symbolized the achievement of a lifelong credential of enormous importance – but the program was now focused – like that of the School of Medicine in 1860 – on the inspirational leadership of the speaker and the recipients of honorary degrees. Student “orators” had given way to those who had been successful and become prominent in American and international life. In 1960 Penn’s Mid-Year Convocation and its annual Commencement adhered closely to this new statement of educational values. It is the model that continues to the present day.

600 Penn Graduates Get Degrees Today

Dr. George B. Kistiakowsky, special assistant to President Eisenhower, will speak at graduation exercises for 600 University of Pennsylvania students Saturday morning and will receive an honorary degree himself. Dr. Kistiakowsky, on leave as Professor of Chemistry at Harvard University to advise the President on science and technology, will receive an honorary Doctor of Science degree.

Honorary Doctor of Law degrees will be conferred upon State Supreme Court Justice John C. Bell, Jr.; Dr. Millard E. Gladfelter, president of Temple University; and Dr. Jonathan E. Rhoads, former provost of the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Rhoads is a professor at the University’s School of Medicine and Graduate School of Medicine. He is director of the Harrison Department of Surgical Research.

University president Gaylord P. Harnwell will confer both the honorary and academic degrees. The 600 graduates represent 15 schools of the University. Dr. Charles C. Price, Professor of Chemistry at the University, will present Dr. Kistiakowsky at the honorary degree ceremony. Horace Stern, former Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court, will present Justice Bell. Dr. Loren C. Eiseley, university provost, will present Dr. Gladfelter. Dr. I. S. Ravdin, Penn’s vice president for medical affairs, will present Dr. Rhoads.

Philadelphia Inquirer

In February 1960 George Bogdan Kistiakowsky (1900 – 1982) was the highest ranking scientist in the U.S. government. Eight months earlier President Dwight D. Eisenhower had named Kistiakowsky his Special Assistant for Science and Technology. Kistiakowsky had won international honors as a research scientist, concentrating on the kinetics of chemical reactions. During World War II he had developed the device which through the use of chemical explosives had detonated the atomic bomb. He was a native of Kiev, in the Ukraine, who, as a young man, had fought on the losing side in the Russian revolution.
In his address at Penn’s Mid-Year Convocation, he spoke both to scientific advance and to national security:

To accomplish two of the objectives stated in the Constitution – to provide for the common defense and to insure domestic tranquility – we have marshaled strong human resources. Many brave and imaginative men and women are helping to push outward the boundaries of knowledge and to reduce frontiers of ignorance. I need not discourse on the scientific and technological contest with the Soviet Union, which today involves our national prestige, and tomorrow, perhaps, our very survival.

Kistiakowsky continued to serve as Special Assistant to President Eisenhower until the end of the President’s term in January 1961. He served on the advisory board to the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency from 1962 to 1969, but resigned as a foreign policy adviser in 1967, when he made public his views against the Vietnam War. Still later, he was chairman of the Council for a Livable World, a Washington-based group seeking to reduce the danger of nuclear war through arms control. He retired from his Harvard professorship in 1971.

The Commencement of 1960 featured a speaker of great, national influence. John Jay McCloy (1895 – 1989) was chairman of so many boards and had his hands in so many ventures that he was once called the informal “chairman of the Establishment,” a group that “fixes major goals and constitutes itself a ready pool of manpower for the more exacting labors of leadership.” McCloy was a lawyer and diplomat, who advised American presidents from Franklin D. Roosevelt to Ronald Reagan. He was conservative in outlook, but not partisan. “I saw my public service in terms of getting things done,” he later said, “I never considered myself a politician, but rather a lawyer, so the question I asked myself in the various jobs I had was, ‘What should we do to solve the problem at hand?’ Then I tried to proceed accordingly.” Pragmatic, versatile, and reliable, McCloy would, within a year’s time, be named President Kennedy’s chief disarmament adviser and negotiator, a position he used to help create an atmosphere of respect and civility which could lead to peaceful relations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

McCloy Assails Eisenhower Critics In Penn Address

‘Political Aspirants’ Hit For Summit Attacks

Former U.S. High Commissioner for Germany John J. McCloy Wednesday lashed out at the “spate of gratuitous criticisms” of President Eisenhower that followed the summit collapse. Speaking at the University of Pennsylvania’s 204th commencement exercises, held in Convention Hall, McCloy blamed “columnists and some political aspirants,” but mentioned no names. “The tone of some of these,” he said, “made one feel the commentators were quite put out that Khrushchev so behaved in Paris that it was difficult to place all the blame on the President.”

“Now, if as seems to be the case, we face the prospect of a continued Soviet pattern of vilification in connection with our exchanges and attempts to negotiate differences in this deadly serious business of maintaining peace, how much more necessary is it that the Free World furnish enlightenment and well-considered action which educated and courteous officials are capable of providing.”
McClay, now board chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank, New York, and chairman of the board of trustees of the Ford Foundation, called attention to the demand on the part of many commentators for a grand restatement of our national purpose. “The vigor of the Communist methods and objectives,” he said, “the economic resurgence of the entire Sino-Soviet bloc, the whole impetus of the scientific revolution have caused these people to express a need for new inspirational symbols to stimulate our progress.”

“The stir that is occurring in the under-developed areas of the world, the sense of revolutionary expectancy on the part of so many that their lot is about and ought to be radically changed, the threat of nuclear war, the missile gap, the economic challenge, all have made many of us wonder what our destiny is to be.”

“It is a matter of personal dedication rather than restatement of purpose of which we stand in need,” he said, and urged the graduates to equip themselves to perform public service “when the demand and opportunity arises.”

Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, president of the university, presided at the exercises, at which 2,353 degrees in course were awarded. Honorary degrees were given McCloy; Dr. John W. Knutson, assistant surgeon general and chief dental officer of the U.S. Public Health Service; Lauriston S. Taylor, chief of the division of atomic and radiation physics, National Bureau of Standards; Dr. Jacob Viner, professor of economics at Princeton University; Dr. Nelson Glueck, president of Hebrew Union Jewish Institute of Religion; and Dr. Eric A. Walker, president of Pennsylvania State University.

Dr. Harnwell called attention to the Rev. Andrew H. Neilly, 70, retired United Presbyterian clergyman, who was among the graduates of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. The clergyman received a long ovation.

TODAY

Penn in 2010

Continuing to Drive Progress in a New Decade

Despite the largely disenchanting events of the past ten years – recently dubbed by Time Magazine as “the Decade from Hell” – we at Penn have avoided 21st-century ennui by cultivating creativity, collaboration, and innovation. In the new millennium, we forged ahead in teaching, research, and service. We also opened 14 new buildings, completed the historic acquisition of the former postal lands, and launched our ambitious campus development plan, Penn Connects.

Our partnerships to create a more vibrant and safer West Philadelphia thrived. In recognition of our ongoing efforts to engage with our neighbors and community leaders, the Survey of Best College and University Civic Partnerships recognized Penn as the “Best Neighbor” among national colleges and universities. This first-place award made special mention of our university-assisted school model, our service learning curriculum, and our Penn Connects master plan.

We also strengthened our academic research collaborations in Africa, Asia, Europe, and South America. In Botswana, we helped to build institutional capacity to mitigate the devastating effects of HIV and AIDS and partnered with the University of Botswana, the Ministry of Health, and Princess Marina Hospital on clinical care, research, and education. In China, we built upon our longstanding collaborations with eminent universities and expanded our strategic partnerships with Tsinghua University and Shanghai Jiao Tong University.

In 2009, we made significant progress toward reaching our Penn Compact goals and rounded out the “aughts” with a series of noteworthy achievements. To honor our ongoing commitment to increasing access, we expanded our financial aid budget, implemented a no-loan policy for all aid-eligible undergraduates, and again increased base stipends for all graduate students. Our current year’s tuition increase was the smallest at Penn since 1968.

While attracting the finest students and scholars to Penn, we also hired eminent faculty members and completed capital projects in areas of strategic importance. Two new Penn Integrates Knowledge professors joined our ranks this year: Daniel S. Och University Professor Dr. Shelley Berger, a world-renowned genetics researcher, and Dr. Karen Glanz, a globally influential public health scholar. The Annenberg Public Policy Center opened, providing a beautiful new forum for students and scholars, and the long-anticipated Roberts Proton Therapy Center brought state-of-the-art cancer care to our advanced and integrated medical center.

Now, we begin a new decade together, uplifted by our achievements and optimistic about the future. We will continue to make a Penn education accessible; we will continue to integrate knowledge and seek innovative ways of addressing complex problems; we will continue to build a culture that fosters academic eminence, and we will continue to engage with local and global communities as we work to improve the world.

Milestones give each of us an opportunity to reflect on the past and look ahead to the future. We made it through the “Decade from Hell” together and, in the process, managed to move our University closer than ever to eminence. With the Penn Compact as our guide, we will drive ever greater progress far into the future.

President Amy Gutmann
excerpted from Alumnac
12 January 2010

In 2010 the Penn Compact with its threefold theme – increasing access, integrating knowledge, and engaging locally and globally – leads the University of Pennsylvania into the future. It does so in partnership with the campus building plan, Penn Connects, and the $3.5 billion capital campaign, Making History. Working together these three initiatives promise to achieve President Gutmann’s objective for Penn: from excellence to eminence. Today, as the University community celebrates the Commencement of 2010, it is useful to reflect on the institution’s oldest traditions and to recognize that Penn is keeping faith with the best of its past.

University Archives and Records Center
The practice of sporting signs on caps and gowns as a form of public proclamation at Commencement dates to the early 1760s and recalls an even more ancient tradition, originating in the practice of medieval universities. Penn’s archives contain several 18th century broadsides, printed in Latin, which were distributed to Commencement guests along with the regular programs. The broadsides contain a series of propositions classified under various academic headings. Presumably, the graduating students were willing to defend these theses against any assertions to the contrary. On the eve of the Revolution, however, statements such as “the rights of the people are as divine as the rights of their rulers” must have met with widespread sympathy.

ACADEMIC CEREMONY AND REGALIA

Commencement exercises at American universities and colleges traditionally are composed of three essential elements: the Academic Procession, the conferring of degrees, and the Commencement address. This practice has been codified since 1895, when a national conference on academic costume and ceremony was proposed and a plan known initially as the “Intercollegiate System” was formally adopted. The Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania incorporated this code in the Statutes of the University in November 1896. Now under the aegis of the American Council on Education, the “Academic Costume Code and Academic Ceremony Guide” was revised in 1952 and 1960. Throughout the 20th century, Commencement at Penn has, with minor modifications, followed the dictates of the code and its revisions.

By 1896, however, Penn had been granting degrees for nearly 140 years. Like other American colonial colleges, Penn borrowed its 18th century Commencement rituals directly from the English universities. In England the history of academic dress reaches back to the early days of the oldest schools. As early as the second half of the 14th century, the statutes of certain colleges prohibited “excess in apparel” and required the wearing of a long gown. It is still an open question as to whether academic dress finds its sources chiefly in ecclesiastical or in civilian dress. It is often suggested that gowns and hoods were the simplest, most effective method of staying warm in the unheated, stone buildings which housed medieval scholars. In any case, academic regalia had evolved to contemporary familiarity by the time Benjamin Franklin was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws by the University of St. Andrews in 1759.

TRADITIONS AND CURRENT PRACTICE AT PENN

In April 1887, on the recommendation of a committee of the faculty, the Trustees adopted the “‘Pennsylvania’ System of Academic Costume.” The colors and trimmings of hoods and caps were regularized according to faculty and degree. Beginning with the Commencement of 1887, the “Pennsylvania’ System” was published in each year’s program and adherence to its rules was expected of trustees, faculty, and students alike. Beginning in 1896, the “Pennsylvania’ System” was superseded by the “Intercollegiate System,” which has continued in effect to the present time.

The gowns used in American academic ceremonies vary according to the highest degree awarded to the wearer. The gown for the bachelor’s degree has pointed sleeves; it is designed to be worn closed. The gown for the masters degree has an oblong sleeve, open at the wrist. The sleeve base hangs down in the traditional manner. The rear part of its oblong shape is square cut and the front has an arc cut away. The masters gown may be worn open or closed. The doctoral gown is a more elaborate costume faced down the front with black velvet and across the sleeves with three bars of the same; these facings and crossbars may be of velvet of the color distinctive to the field of study to which the degree pertains. The doctoral gown has bell-shaped sleeves and may be worn open or closed. Some institutions have authorized doctoral gowns in colors other than the customary black; holders of the University of Pennsylvania doctorate may wear red and blue gowns.

The hoods are lined in silk with the official color or colors of the college or university which granted the highest degree held by the wearer; more than one color is shown by division of the field color in a variety of ways, such as by chevron or chevrons. The binding or edging of the hood is in velvet, with widths of two inches, three inches, and five inches for the bachelors, masters, and doctoral degrees, respectively. The color of the border indicates the field of study to which the degree pertains. University of Pennsylvania graduates wear a hood lined in red with a blue chevron. The mortarboard cap is standard, though soft square-topped caps are permissible. Recipients of doctorates may wear a gold tassel fastened to the middle point of the top of the cap; all others wear black.

Degrees shall be conferred today according to the following order:

- Arts & Letters, white
- Science, golden yellow
- Business Administration, mustard
- Nursing, apricot
- Medicine, green
- Law, purple
- Fine Arts, brown
- Dental Medicine, lilac
- Veterinary Medicine, gray
- Education, light blue
- Social Work, citron
- Philosophy, dark blue

THE ACADEMIC PROCESSION
The order for today's Academic Procession is as follows:

- Mace Bearer
- President and Provost
- Chairman of the Board of Trustees
- Commencement Speaker
- Candidates for Honorary Degrees
- Deans
- Trustees
- Officers of the University
- Overseers
- Visiting Dignitaries

THE MACE
The Secretary of the University carries the University mace, the symbol of authority of the University, at the head of the Academic Procession. It was a gift of the family of William Murray Gordon, M.D. 1910. It is adorned with the seal and arms of the University, the Penn and Franklin coats-of-arms, a depiction of the Rittenhouse orrery, and a thistle symbolizing the early ties of the University with Scotland.

THE PRESIDENT'S BADGE OF OFFICE
The President wears as a badge of office a silver medallion of which one face is engraved, like the mace, with the University seal. The obverse of the President's medal bears the “orrery seal,” designed in 1782 by Francis Hopkinson, A.B. 1757, a Signer of the Declaration of Independence. The medal, suspended on a chain composed of silver links, was given by the late Trustee Thomas Sovereign Gates, Jr., A.B. 1928, LL.D. 1956, on the occasion of Sheldon Hackney's inauguration as President in October 1981.

THE SCHOOL OF ARTS AND SCIENCES (1755)
The School of Arts and Sciences (SAS) is the direct descendant of the College of Philadelphia, where Benjamin Franklin established the first modern arts and sciences curriculum in the English colonies. Undergraduate programs for men date to the chartering of the College in 1755; the College of Liberal Arts for Women was founded in 1933. The Graduate School was established in 1882 with the appointment of a Faculty of Philosophy. The College of Liberal and Professional Studies (lifelong learning) traces its roots to 1892. The School of Arts and Sciences was born in 1974 with the merger of the College of Arts and Sciences, the College for Women, the Graduate School, and four social science departments from Wharton. Today SAS is the largest of the University’s 12 schools, providing a liberal arts education for all Penn undergraduates and supporting graduate studies, basic research, and continuing education across the full range of the humanities, natural sciences, and social sciences. The School has 26 departments with 491 standing faculty, 23 research centers, five interschool institutes, and 10,000 students.

THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE (1765)
The first medical school in the English colonies was established at Penn in 1765, and it has set the academic tone and direction of American medical education since that time. Today, the School of Medicine, a leader among the nation’s medical schools, is committed to the highest standards in education, research, and patient care. It is continuously engaged in long-range strategic planning and implementation, focusing on programs and facilities that will take it well into the 21st century. In the current academic year, the School has 25 departments, 22 interdepartmental centers and institutes, and 1,615 full-time faculty members. It educates 740 M.D. students, 144 M.D./Ph.D. students, and 583 Ph.D. students, and trains more than a thousand residents and fellows. Over the last decade, the School has consistently ranked among the top recipients of monies granted by the National Institutes of Health.

THE LAW SCHOOL (1790)
Legal education at Penn began in 1790 with a series of lectures on law by its first law professor, James Wilson, a signer of the Declaration of Independence and one of the original six justices of the Supreme Court of the United States. After a long hiatus, instruction in law was reestablished in 1830 by George Sharnow; in 1852 the Bachelor of Laws degree was conferred for the first time, and in 1888 the course of study was extended from two to three years. Today Penn Law’s pervasive cross-disciplinary program sets the standard in legal education with an unparalleled program that starts at the Law School and extends throughout the University. More than 75 percent of our faculty hold advanced degrees beyond law and more than 50 percent have joint appointments and affiliations, adding a broader perspective to the classroom. Our students augment their legal education with classes throughout the University, and earn certificates and joint degrees from many of the graduate and professional programs. In the 2009-2010 academic year the Law School has 999 students; 56 standing faculty including 10 associated faculty and clinicians, one senior fellow, and one senior lecturer; and 87 practitioners/lecturers. The School awards four degrees: Juris Doctor; Master of Laws; Master of Comparative Laws; and Doctor of the Science of Law.

THE SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING AND APPLIED SCIENCE (1852)
The School of Engineering and Applied Science (SEAS) is one of the oldest in the United States, tracing its beginnings to the establishment of the School of Mines, Arts and Manufactures in 1852. The first graduate of the School received a Bachelor of Science degree in 1854. Since that time, the School has grown into a center of excellence in the creation of technology and in technology education. Its spirit of innovation led to the creation in 1946 of ENIAC, the first all-electronic, large-scale, general-purpose digital computer, making SEAS the birthplace of the computer age. Today, Penn Engineering offers a wide range of undergraduate and graduate programs, including the first alternative liberal arts program based in an engineering school. SEAS is particularly distinguished by its inter-disciplinary, cross-school programs such as Management and Technology, Digital Media Design, Biotechnology, and the Executive Masters in Technology Management. Penn Engineering currently has 110 standing faculty, approximately 1,500 undergraduate students, 1,000 graduate students, four research institutes, eight research centers, and one regional institute.

THE SCHOOL OF DESIGN (1869)
Although the School of Design dates its founding from 1890, architecture courses were first offered at the University of Pennsylvania in 1869, making Penn’s architecture program the second oldest in the United States. In 1921, the Department of Architecture joined with the Department of Music and Fine Arts to create an independent undergraduate School of Fine Arts modeled on the French École des Beaux Arts. In 1958, the School was renamed the Graduate School of Fine Arts, reflecting the shift to graduate degree offerings in architecture, city and regional planning, landscape architecture and fine arts. The triumvirate of architecture, landscape architecture and city planning shaped the core of the School in the 1950s and 1960s. In the 1980s, a program in historic preservation was added. Today, the School provides a rich environment for the study of the arts, architecture, urbanism, landscapes and urbanism. Its opportunities now include undergraduate study in fine arts, architecture and digital media design. As a more accurate description of the School’s major concerns and advancements made across a variety of fields, the School was renamed, in 2003, the School of Design. The School has a standing faculty of 35, approximately 130 lecturers and associated faculty, and more than 600 students.

THE SCHOOL OF DENTAL MEDICINE (1878)
Established in 1878 as the Dental Department of the University of Pennsylvania, the School of Dental Medicine is among the oldest university-affiliated dental institutions in the country with a history deeply rooted in forging precedents in dental education, research, and patient care. Its first facilities in 1878 were housed in Medical Hall (now Logan Hall), and the following year, it moved into its own building, Dental Hall, designed and constructed for its particular needs. In 1897, Thomas W. Evans, a Philadelphia native and exceptional clinician who spent most of his life in France as the dentist and confidant to European nobility, left his estate to create and maintain a dental school that would be “second to none.” Evans’ bequest would become one with the University, creating the Thomas W. Evans Museum and Dental Institute, which opened in 1915 as the best-equipped dental building in the nation at that time. Today, the Evans Building remains the site of much of the School’s clinical and classroom instruction. The dental campus also includes the Robert Schattner Center and the Leon Levy Center for Oral Health Research, home to the School’s basic science faculty and extensive research activities. The School of Dental Medicine is a major provider of clinical care to residents of the West Philadelphia community and also has established innovative outreach programs; through community service learning, students log nearly 9,600 hours each year serving approximately 20,000 residents in the surrounding Philadelphia neighborhoods. The School awards the degrees of Doctor of Dental Medicine and Master of Science in Oral Biology and... trains postdoctoral residents in the clinical specialties of endodontics, oral medicine, oral and maxillofacial surgery, orthodontics, pediatrics, periodontics, periodontics/orthodontics, and periodontal prosthesis. In the 2009-2010 academic year, the School of Dental Medicine has 502 DMD students, 82 postdoctoral residents, 18 postdoctoral researchers and fellows, and a total of 352 faculty members, including 49 standing faculty.

THE WHARTON SCHOOL (1881)

The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania – founded in 1881 as the first collegiate business school – is recognized globally for its intellectual leadership and ongoing innovation across every major discipline of business education. The most contemporary of business knowledge in the world, Wharton bridges research and practice through its broad engagement with the global business community. The school has more than 4,900 undergraduate, MBA and doctoral students; more than 9,000 annual participants in executive education programs; and an alumni network of 85,000 graduates.

THE SCHOOL OF VETERINARY MEDICINE (1884)

Penn’s School of Veterinary Medicine is one of the world’s premier veterinary schools. Founded in 1884, the School was built on the concept of Many Species, One Medicine™. A pioneer since its inception, the School has led the way in such areas as infectious disease research, germ cell biology, animal transgenesis, comparative oncology, and comparative medical genetics. It has also successfully integrated scholarship and research with all aspects of veterinary medical education. The School’s strength in basic sciences, immunology and mathematical modeling are valuable assets for developing strategies to rapidly detect and control the spread of new infections and for improving and developing vaccines that effectively protect animals. In Philadelphia, on Penn’s campus, are the Matthew J. Ryan Veterinary Hospital for companion animals, as well as classrooms, research laboratories and the School’s administrative offices. The Vernon and Shirley Hill Pavilion is home to state-of-the-art classrooms and research facilities for the School. The large animal facility at New Bolton Center, in Kennett Square, Pa., includes hospital facilities for the care of horses and food animals, diagnostic laboratories serving the agricultural industry and research facilities to determine new treatment and diagnostic measures for large animal diseases. The School has 127 standing faculty and accepts approximately 125 students per year for the four-year program.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION (1914)

The Graduate School of Education (GSE) is a leader in the production of education research and the preparation of education practitioners. GSE is unique among schools of education in its development of custom degree programs, its extensive collaborations with Pennsylvania, and its rich collaborations across Penn. The School is organized into five academic divisions, has 37 standing faculty, various research centers, and approximately 1,000 students. Originally an undergraduate education school and, for many years, a five-year professional school, GSE now provides advanced professional qualifications for educators across the lifespan and offers courses that lead to practice- and research-focused masters and doctoral degrees. The School also offers executive doctoral degree programs and a broad schedule of continuing education courses.

THE SCHOOL OF NURSING (1935)

Nursing Education at Penn began in 1886 when the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania started a nurse training program. In 1935, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania established a nursing degree program within the School of Education, and in 1950 the School of Nursing was established. The Master of Science in Nursing program was instituted in 1961, the Doctor of Nursing Science program in 1975, and the Doctor of Philosophy program in 1984. These innovations and a curriculum which progressively reflects changing health care delivery patterns have advanced the School into the first rank of American schools of nursing. The School is widely recognized for its leadership in nursing research and its innovations in nurse-managed clinical practice. It is a World Health Organization Collaborating Center for Nursing and Midwifery Leadership. The School of Nursing has 55 standing faculty and 1,056 students.

THE SCHOOL OF SOCIAL POLICY & PRACTICE (1948)

The School of Social Policy & Practice began in 1908 as a private school that opened its doors to five students in the field of child welfare. The School affiliated itself with the University in 1935 and became a formal school in 1948. In 2005, it changed its name from the School of Social Work to the School of Social Policy & Practice. The School offers the Master of Social Work, Master of Science in Nonprofit/Non-Governmental Organization Leadership, Master of Science in Social Policy, and Doctor of Philosophy in Social Welfare degrees. In 2007, the School also began offering the clinical Doctor of Social Work degree, and is graduating the first cohort from that program this year. The School is devoted to advancing human welfare, promoting social justice, and developing effective societal responses to global human need. Building on the School’s century-long commitment to social work and social change, the School educates clinicians, policymakers, scholars, researchers, and leaders who work to advance the human welfare of local, national, and global communities. The School houses a number of research centers and programs, including: the Field Center for Children’s Policy, Practice, and Research; the Center for High Impact Philanthropy; the Cartographic Modeling Lab; the Social Work Mental Health Research Center; the Social Impact of the Arts Project; the Program for Religion and Social Policy Research; the Out-of-School Time Resource Center; and the Evelyn Jacobs Ortner Center on Family Violence. The School has 23 standing faculty and 380 students.

THE ANNENBERG SCHOOL FOR COMMUNICATION (1959)

Founded through the generosity and vision of diplomat and philanthropist Walter Annenberg, the Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Pennsylvania is devoted to furthering our understanding of the role of communication in public life through research, education and service. At the School’s founding, Ambassador Annenberg identified its unique mission. “Every human advancement or reversal can be understood through communication,” he said. “The right to free communication carries with it responsibility to respect the dignity of others - and this must be recognized as irreversible. Educating students to effectively communicate this message and to be of service to all people is the enduring mission of this school.” Annenberg is nationally ranked as the best graduate program in mass communication, health communication, political communication, and culture, society and communication, the Annenberg School has 20 full-time faculty, over 80 graduate students and more than 200 undergraduate students. The School offers the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, and runs an undergraduate program through the College of Arts and Sciences. The School is home to the Annenberg Public Policy Center, the Center of Excellence in Cancer Communication Research, the Center for Global Communication Studies, the Scholars Program in Culture & Communication, and the Institute for Public Service, among many additional projects pursuing innovative communication research and services.
HONORARY DEGREE CITATIONS

SANDRA M. FABER

Many people gaze up at the sky with questions. As an observational astronomer, you peer into it to find answers. You received your bachelor’s degree in physics from Swarthmore College and your doctoral degree in astronomy from Harvard University. Upon completing your degree, you became the first female staff member at the prestigious Lick Observatory at the University of California, Santa Cruz. There you made some of your first major discoveries, including the Faber-Jackson relation that links the brightness of elliptical galaxies to the speeds of stars orbiting within them.

While completing pioneering studies of the formation and evolution of galaxies and of the structure of the universe, you advanced your field by championing the construction of powerful new instruments. In 1985, you articulated the scientific case for building the world’s largest optical telescope, Keck I, providing oversight during the project. Later, you led the design and construction of a powerful spectrograph called DEIMOS for Keck II, a device that has enabled the study of distant galaxies.

In 1990, you assisted with the commissioning of the Wide Field Planetary Camera for the Hubble Space Telescope. When the telescope sent flawed images back to Earth, you and your team were instrumental in diagnosing the problem—a spherical aberration in one of the telescope’s mirrors—and you worked under intense pressure to develop and recommend a refurbishment plan.

In recognition of your many outstanding contributions, the American Institute of Physics and the American Astronomical Society awarded you the Heineman Prize for Astrophysics; the Franklin Institute awarded you the 2009 Bower Award, and the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences of Harvard University awarded you its Centennial Medal.

Today, you continue your research at the Lick Observatory and serve as University Professor of Astronomy and Astrophysics. As project leader for the Cosmology Survey Multi-Cycle Treasury Program, you oversee an international team that will collect images of more than 250,000 distant galaxies, providing the first comprehensive view of their structure and assembly over the first third of cosmic time.

For your ongoing exploration of our evolving Universe and your commitment to gathering information that will fuel the work of future generations, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Sandra M. Faber, the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa.

PAUL FARMER

Your tremendous passion for improving the human condition was ignited more than two decades ago when you traveled to Haiti to care for some of the world’s most destitute people.

In 1987, three years before you received your Doctor of Medicine and Doctor of Philosophy in Anthropology from Harvard University, you founded Partners In Health with your colleagues in Haiti to leverage all available medical, social, and political resources to provide health care to the poor. This work was the subject of Pulitzer Prize-winning author Tracy Kidder’s best-selling book, Mountains Beyond Mountains: The Quest of Dr. Paul Farmer, a Man Who Would Cure the World. Today, Partners In Health has replicated its community-based model in communities in Guatemala, Lesotho, Malawi, Mexico, Peru, Rwanda, Russia, and the United States.

Your unceasing efforts have garnered numerous awards. In 1993, you were named a Fellow by the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation and used your prize money to establish the Institute for Health and Social Justice. You also have received the American Medical Association’s Outstanding International Physician Award, the Heinz Award for the Human Condition, the Conrad N. Hilton Humanitarian Prize, the National Foundation for Infectious Diseases Carter Award for Humanitarian Contributions to the Health of Humankind, and the Skoll Foundation’s “Social Entrepreneur of the Year” Award. You are a member of the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Announcing your appointment in 2009 as United Nations Deputy Special Envoy to Haiti, former President Bill Clinton noted that your “...selfless commitment to building health systems in the poor Haitian communities over the last 20 years has given millions of people hope for a brighter future for Haiti.” In the wake of this year’s devastating earthquake, you mobilized efforts to attend to victims, coordinated care at the University Hospital in Port-au-Prince, and worked with world leaders to begin developing reconstruction plans.

Over the course of your exceptional career, you have embraced the tenet that every life is a life worth saving. You have shined a light on the deplorable conditions in which the poorest among us live, and you have challenged the world to seek social justice for all. Today, in recognition of your fearless and tireless quest to improve the human condition, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Paul Farmer, the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa.

JON M. HUNTSMAN, JR.

Your enduring commitment to the United States of America has led you across the country and around the world, always to the benefit of your fellow citizens.

After earning a bachelor’s degree in international politics from Penn, you launched your public service career in our nation’s capital, serving as White House staff assistant to President Ronald Reagan. Since that time, you have been appointed as Deputy Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Asia, U.S. Ambassador to Singapore, and Deputy U.S. Trade Representative, a position that led to trade agreements with Australia, China, India, Singapore, Vietnam, and other Asian and African areas and nations. In 2001, you were instrumental in initiating global trade negotiations at the Fourth Ministerial Conference in Qatar, including the accession of China into the World Trade Organization.

Prior to your appointment as United States Ambassador to China, you ably served as Governor of the State of Utah. During your first term, you worked tirelessly to maintain a high quality of life for your constituents by supporting economic growth, creating a welcoming business climate, and improving public education. In 2006, you were reelected for a second term, winning a majority in each of the state’s 29 counties and receiving a record-setting percentage of the vote. During your tenure, the Pew Center on the States praised Utah as the Best Managed State in America.

You are a founding director of the Pacific Council on International Policy and have served on numerous boards, including the Asia Society in New York, the Brookings Institute Asia Policy Board, the Center for Strategic and International Studies Pacific Forum, and the National Bureau of Asian Research.

Announcing your nomination as Ambassador, President Barack Obama expressed his confidence that you would fulfill our nation’s need for “an ambassador...”
who has a respect for China’s proud traditions, who understands what it will take to make America more competitive in the 21st century, and who will be an unstinting advocate for America’s interests and ideals.” Since your unanimous confirmation by the United States Senate, you have leveraged your lifelong interest in Asia to fortify the relationship between our two great nations.

At home and abroad, you have exemplified the highest standards of excellence and engagement, and have brought honor and distinction to Penn. In recognition of your distinguished career as a public servant and your commitment to global collaboration, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Jon M. Huntsman, Jr., the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.

ABDULLAH IBRAHIM

Reflecting on the diverse musical styles that are combined so beautifully in your compositions, Francis Davis, jazz critic for The Village Voice, wrote, “what’s surprising about Ibrahim’s music, given its origin in a troubled place, is its defiant joy.” For more than six decades, you have shared your inspiring talent with humanity, spreading joy and earning recognition as one of the world’s most influential jazz pianists.

You were born Adolphe Johannes Brand – a name you would later change to Abdullah Ibrahim – in Cape Town, South Africa in 1934. As a child, you sang in the African Methodist Episcopal Church choir. When you were seven years old, your mother gave you your first piano lesson. Thereafter, you purchased inexpensive American jazz records from merchants at the city’s harbor, a practice that earned you the nickname “Dollar” Brand. In 1959, you formed the Jazz Epistles, the first black South African jazz group to record.

Apartheid eventually drove you from South Africa. Buoyed by your growing international popularity, you traveled to Zürich, Switzerland to perform at the famous Café Africana. There, you met Duke Ellington, who subsequently produced the album that launched your career in the United States. You went on to collaborate with legendary jazz musicians such as John Coltrane and Elvin Jones, and to record dozens of albums including the critically-acclaimed African Suite and Bombay.

After decades living in voluntary exile and performing around the world, you returned to South Africa in 1990. Since that time, you have devoted yourself to healing your homeland through music. In 2006, as part of your Holistic Center M7, you created a youth orchestra in Cape Town. You also were featured in the award-winning documentary, Amandla! Revolution in Four Part Harmony, which explores the role of music in the anti-apartheid movement.

In recognition of your achievements, you have been invited to lecture and perform at universities around the globe. Your work also has been the subject of two documentary films and has been celebrated in a series of symphony orchestra performances, one of which honored Nelson Mandela’s installation as President.

For imbuing jazz with the soul of your homeland, for your musical virtuosity, and for your continually evolving efforts to heal South Africa, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Abdullah Ibrahim, the degree of Doctor of Music, honoris causa.

RISA J. LAVIZZO-MOUREY

In your foreword to the thirteenth volume of To Improve Health and Health Care, you recalled the advice of your predecessor at the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, who reminded you that the motivation to improve must be rooted in a desire to achieve excellence. Throughout your illustrious career, you have embodied that approach, establishing yourself as a physician, scholar, policymaker, administrator, and national leader of the highest caliber.

You grew up in Seattle, Washington, where your parents, a pediatrician and a surgeon, opened your eyes to the wonders of practicing medicine. Charting a bold course in their noble profession, you received your Doctor of Medicine from Harvard Medical School and completed your residency in Internal Medicine at Brigham and Women’s Hospital in Boston. Your work brought you to Penn, where you served as a Robert Wood Johnson Scholar and trained in geriatrics. In 1986, you received a Master of Business Administration from the Wharton School of Business and began a successful academic career, distinguished by numerous faculty appointments in the School of Medicine, the School of Nursing, and Wharton, as well as service on high-profile federal advisory committees.

In 2003, you became President and Chief Executive Officer of the nation’s largest philanthropic organization devoted to improving health policy and practice. Under your leadership, the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation has supported the development of solutions to some of the greatest problems facing our society.

Today, projects funded by the foundation are supporting leadership development among health professionals, exploring the needs of vulnerable populations, and advancing health care availability, quality, and delivery. This work transforms the lives of American citizens and strengthens our society.

You have been invited to lecture to audiences across the country and have received awards from respected institutions including the American College of Physicians, the American Medical Women’s Association, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the Harvard School of Public Health, the National Library of Medicine, and the National Medical Association.

You also are a member of the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences.

Today, in recognition of your commitment to improving the health of citizens, to expanding the frontiers of medicine through meaningful partnerships, and to producing lasting social change through philanthropy, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Risa J. Lavizzo-Mourey, the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.

GREG MORTENSON

In a recent interview with Bill Moyers, you shared your belief that “there’s a lot of power behind love and compassion and respecting and listening to people.” Growing up in Tanganyika, Tanzania, you saw this power in action. Your father was the founder of the Kilimanjaro Christian Medical Center, and your mother founded the International School Moshi. In 1983, you followed in their caring footsteps, receiving your bachelor’s degree in nursing from the University of South Dakota.

A decade later, following a failed attempt to climb K2, the world’s second tallest mountain, you sought refuge in the small village of Korphe, Pakistan. During your convalescence, you observed children writing in the dirt with sticks, and you promised to return and help them build a proper school. You stood by your promise. Since your fateful climb, you have established or significantly supported more than 130 schools in Pakistan and Afghanistan, engaging with local... community leaders to develop plans and build on-the-ground capacity. More than 58,000 thousand children in rural areas, approximately 76 percent of them girls, have received an education that would have been inconceivable just a few years ago.

You accomplish your transformative work through the Central Asia Institute, a non-profit organization that you co-founded with another ardent adventurer, Dr. Jean Hoerni. In 1996, you also founded Pennies for Peace, a program for schoolchildren that builds cultural awareness while introducing young people to the power of philanthropy. In recognition of your work, you have received numerous awards, including the Sitara-e-Pakistan or “Star of Pakistan,” that nation’s highest civilian award.

In 2007, you captured the imaginations and hearts of readers around the world with Three Cups of Tea: One Man’s Mission to Promote Peace . . . One School at a Time, which has since sold more than 3.5 million copies in 41 countries. Today, the book is required reading for many diplomatic and military personnel in the United States and abroad because it offers insight into the stabilizing effects of education and the empowerment of local communities.

You have promoted peace through education, built meaningful collaborations in some of the world’s most volatile areas, and inspired action by sharing your story. Today, in recognition of your efforts to help children reach the summit of their potential, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Greg Mortenson, the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

PETER C. NOWELL

A lifetime of research that yields a single groundbreaking discovery is exceptional; a career that changes the course of science and medicine is beyond words. After earning your bachelor’s degree in biochemistry from Wesleyan University, you came home to Philadelphia to pursue your Doctor of Medicine at Penn’s School of Medicine. Upon completing your residency at Presbyterian Hospital, you traveled to San Francisco to serve as a pathologist in the U.S. Navy Reserve. In 1956, you returned to the City of Brotherly Love, joining your alma mater’s faculty as Instructor of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine.

While studying the tumor cells of individuals with chronic myelogenous leukemia in 1960, you identified the “Philadelphia chromosome,” a discovery that provided clear evidence of the link between cancer and chromosomal abnormalities. This seminal contribution and your subsequent predictions about the clonal evolution of tumors demonstrated the genetic basis of cancer, laying the foundation for the fields of cancer biology and cancer genetics. In addition, you investigated the effects of radiation and demonstrated that bone marrow could be transplanted, important precursors to today’s bone marrow transplantation procedures.

You also were a leader during your academic career, serving as Chair of the Department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine and as the first Director of what is now the Abramson Cancer Center. In appreciation for your passionate engagement of students, you received the Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching. You also were honored with the Distinguished Graduate Award from the School of Medicine and the Alumni Award of Merit.

In 1998, you were awarded the Albert Lasker Clinical Medical Research Award in recognition of your “incisive studies in patient-oriented research.” You also have received the American College of Physician’s Award for Outstanding Work in Science as Related to Medicine and the Franklin Institute’s Benjamin Franklin Medal in Life Science, a prize previously bestowed upon luminaries such as Albert Einstein. You are a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the Institute of Medicine, the American Philosophical Society, and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Your pioneering research created new branches on the tree of knowledge and generated lifesaving treatments that have brought relief to untold numbers of people. In recognition of your myriad contributions to Penn, Philadelphia, and the world, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, Peter C. Nowell, the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa.

JAMES S. RIEPE

From your earliest engagement as a student to your devoted service in the University’s most demanding volunteer role, you have strengthened Penn by answering the call to lead and serve.

As an undergraduate, you were a member of the Sphinx Society, captain of the varsity football team, and a brother of Kappa Sigma Fraternity. You studied at the Wharton School of Business, earning your bachelor’s degree in 1965 and your Master of Business Administration in 1967. After Penn, you excelled in the investment management business and played a leadership role in mutual fund industry affairs. You retired from T. Rowe Price Group, Inc. in 2006 and now serve as Senior Advisor and Retired Vice Chairman.

You joined Penn’s Board of Trustees in 1990, serving as chair of the Trustee Standing Committee on Audit and Compliance and of the Investment Board. Nine years later, you were selected to serve as Chair, and, over the course of the next decade, you worked closely with President Judith Rodin and President Amy Gutmann to transform Penn into the thriving, diverse, and highly-rated university it is today. The University’s endowment increased by more than 50 percent; the Making History Campaign met 72 percent of its $3.5 billion goal, and Penn attracted historic numbers of highly-talented students and bolstered the faculty with internationally-renowned scholars.

Fourteen new buildings were opened during your tenure, including the award-winning Skirkanich Hall and the state-of-the-art Ruth and Raymond Perelman Center for Advanced Medicine. In addition, you supported the acquisition of the Postal Lands on the eastern edge of campus, an achievement that will spur the connection of Penn to Center City, provide new recreational fields and facilities, and increase green space by 20 percent.

You also channeled your passion for Penn into generous gifts to support students. Through Riepe Endowed Scholarships and Riepe College House, talented young women and men have the opportunity to benefit fully from the Penn experience. Over the years, you and your alumna wife, Gail, have provided them with precious guidance, exemplifying the importance of maintaining Penn’s rich traditions through generations.

Your deep love of the Red and the Blue and your thoughtful leadership have earned you the universal respect of the Penn community. Today, in recognition of your unflagging devotion, your inspirational achievements, and your extraordinary term as Chair of the Board of Trustees, the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania are honored and pleased to confer upon you, James S. Riepe, the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.

As final action cannot always be taken by the time this program goes to press, these lists of degree and prize recipients are tentative only. The appearance of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person has received a degree from the University of Pennsylvania. Conversely, the absence of a student’s name herein does not necessarily mean that the person has not been awarded a Penn degree. The student’s transcript is the official record of the University.

As final action cannot always be taken by the time this program goes to press, these lists of degree and prize recipients are tentative only. The appearance of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person has received a degree from the University of Pennsylvania. Conversely, the absence of a student’s name herein does not necessarily mean that the person has not been awarded a Penn degree. The student’s transcript is the official record of the University.

As final action cannot always be taken by the time this program goes to press, these lists of degree and prize recipients are tentative only. The appearance of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person has received a degree from the University of Pennsylvania. Conversely, the absence of a student’s name herein does not necessarily mean that the person has not been awarded a Penn degree. The student’s transcript is the official record of the University.

As final action cannot always be taken by the time this program goes to press, these lists of degree and prize recipients are tentative only. The appearance of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person has received a degree from the University of Pennsylvania. Conversely, the absence of a student’s name herein does not necessarily mean that the person has not been awarded a Penn degree. The student’s transcript is the official record of the University.
