The class of nineteen hundred and twenty has resolved to dedicate their record to
William Ward • Pierson

They would ever keep in mind the man who but lately moved among them as an enthusiastic leader and a generous friend.
He followed well the ideals of college and country, and surrendered his life that those ideals might not perish from the earth. His memory will be cherished by all those who knew him;
for he proved triumphantly both by his life and death the traditions under which his university was founded, for which his native land engaged in the great struggle. Coming generations though they may miss the inspiration of his presence will have before them his work and his example and say of him as the old troop said of its dead comrade: "absent but accounted for; he is with the heroes"

THE CLASS

Of all the good things which Pennsylvania has given us within the days of our undergraduate life, by far the most valuable has been the opportunity for unselfish service. As we view in retrospect the past few years we realize that all our most worthy ambitions, all the worth-while things we may have accomplished and all that we lauded in our classmates was actuated by this spirit, which vitalizes the past history of our University. It was this spirit of unselfish service for an ideal which determined us to enlist in the cause of Democracy. Individually and as a class we did our best and to some the opportunity came and they made the supreme sacrifice. The memory of their deeds is cherished by their classmates, their University and the nation as the highest embodiment of unselfishness.

To have labored for Pennsylvania is a privilege which can never be measured in terms of gold and silver but only in the feeling that in some way, we may have added something to the traditions and fame of our Alma Mater.

We have lived, for the greater part, a cloistered life. The campus was our little world of activity. From the day of our initiation by the sophomores four years ago we began to think in terms of this microcosm. Now we are about to enter another sphere of activity armed with the precepts we have learned and ready and eager for whatever may come. And as we look forward, we can only hope that the dawn of each day may seem as fresh, that friends may be as true and that the future may always seem as bright as when viewed from the campus of our Alma Mater.

Of course no one for a minute doubted our ability to make good after this defiant yell boomed across the campus on a late September night way back in 1916. The few hundred of us who turned out on Franklin Field were given a right warm reception by our worthy superiors, the sophs, to the tune of belts and paddles, and we were now duly acknowledged as Pennsylvania men.

The first official action of the class was to elect Everett Smalley temporary president and to put in his hands the job of instilling class spirit into a mob of over 1,200 green freshmen. In the meantime under Coach Jourdet and Captain Rouse our first athletic representatives were disporting themselves in football togs.

Then came the days when we had to be on our toes lest we be caught by the ever-watchful Vigilance Committee and the dues collectors. The latter were scurrying around to get the two hundred members to make the final class elections valid, and powerful were the machines formed by our youthful political geniuses. "Johnnie" Carter was chosen as chief magistrate for the rest of the year, and often doffed his overalls and left the pounding machinery of the M. E. department to begin his campaign for getting men into activities. Let it be said that every man went into it with a snap that has provided our own class with more big men than the two senior societies can accommodate and upon whom many campus duties fall, and has willed and bequeathed to the class of 1921 much of the "pep" it now boasts of. The many men lost by our class due to the war, who now claim allegiance in another class or claim to be making good in the cruel world, still have recollections of this first year that 1920 is proud of.

Rushing season came and went and those who had survived the faculty cut and the never-stop entertainment of fraternities, now considered themselves immune from N's and F's in the study line and applied themselves to activities more excitedly than ever. Heelers heeled furiously and wrote volumes; athletes "mistered" the coaches until they landed a place on the teams; committees swarmed everywhere and kept Houston Hall, "the clubhouse of Pennsylvania's aristocracy," jammed to the doors.
On the Freshman crew, which was made up of Ames, Robinson, Ellson, Davidson, Doremus, Dietr, O'Gorman, and Thomas, with “Jack” Frost as the transparent “coxie,” we recognize the now collegiately famous “Walt,” “Vern” and “Carl.” The soccer eleven used “Red” Tinsman, “Pat” Spencer and “Izzy” Hough, but none of these three is enjoying the honor of graduating with us this June. “Eddie” Shields and “Don” Leopold were easily our early aquatic stars and “Bill” Tandy learned his first brutal water polo tricks this year too.

In “Rip Van Winkle,” the Mask and Wig Show for the year, we had unusually good representatives for the baby class—“Ned” Ramsey one of the class political bosses, and “Ed” Vare, who now keeps the class of 1921 on the map, made up as dazzling red-haired girls. “Pat” Spencer, and “Bob” Bell did cast duty and W. C. Collins, F. T. Lord and W. P. Buchanan were songsters.

Twenty of our men were members of the combined Glee and Instrumental Club and with a start like this it is no wonder that our noise in the musical organizations has always been the biggest. Our activity here grew and grew until this year, under such able guidance as “Line” Hall and “Charlie” Martin, the clubs have completed a most eventful season. The football season’s songs without “Line’s” setting-up exercises out in front of us would have been dull.

As a class fight had resulted fatally the year previous, it was decided to substitute interclass athletic scraps between the two lower classes and so we were busy getting our yearling huskies together for the first match with the Sophs. This was in the shape of a basketball game which our team, under captain Stannard, erstwhile one of the “dirty dents,” captured. The series of eleven different contests was interrupted by many war enlistments, but at the end of the season the count stood 4 to 3 against us, our other victories being in swimming and water polo, while the Sophs cleaned up in crew, soccer, wrestling and baseball.

“Ham” Warner was duly accorded the honor of being the strongest man in the class and was closely followed by “Joe” Straus and “Jack” Doremus, the latter being the skipper of our Freshman crew. Mitchell, our star twirler, led the nine and “Eddie” Shields, miler and swimmer, captain the tank men. The only social event our class staged in its first year was one long to be remembered for its spirit. With Houston Hall packed to the doors, all the class talent in oratory, harmony and dancing entertained at a famous smoker followed by the historic rush for refreshments. Such indoor fights should be prohibited. Another smoker was to have followed, but war conditions made this impossible and also caused the cancellation of the Soph-Fresh picnic.

Athletically our freshman year is famous for the championship and record-breaking mile relay team composed of Davis, Eby, Maxam and Hough which hung up a mark only three seconds behind the world’s record. Smalley and “Sherm” Landers were other stars in the 1917 Relay Carnival.

By the fall of 1917 all our classmates who had survived the scholastic mortality figures of final examinations or who had not enlisted, returned to find a very military student body. In this, too, 1920 came to the front. Frank Steiner and “Jim” Bolton held the highest ranks of colonel and lieutenant-colonel and were responsible for Pennsylvania’s excellent ranking among colleges where military training existed. Our class enrollment in the R. O. T. C. was the largest and we were soon gratified to see others of our classmates gain recognition. Elmer Slagle secured a majority, while at the same time taking attendance of track candidates and doing the odd jobs that have given him the managership of that sport. And among the captains we claimed Drew Arend, Max Brevillier and Gordon Giesecke. The latter has deserted our class for the business world. All this was a pretty good indication that the mere sophomores were by no means slow.

After electing “Herb” Dieter, one of the famous line huskies that stopped holes in the Varsity, to lead the class, we had a short breathing spell to take an account of what we had accomplished. Of course the one who stood out was John Lovitt, with a string of three publication keys across his chest. From his pen flowed glowing eulogies of woman, in art, fiction and interview alike. Tis said that his intimate reports of interviews with the fair performers in the “Masque of American Drama” moved the journalistic and slangy members of The Pennsylvanian staff. Our other scribes at the time were Earle Van Vliet, this year’s campus oracle, by whose ink-stained hands are formed long exhortations on all campus subjects; "Ed" Pollard, "Phil" Shulhafer, Buckenmaier, the two Roses (no, not York and Lancaster), Hollis Alden and "Ike" Newton. Many of these boys have deserted us, but the fame they brought lives on.

In other forms of publication work, '20 was tacked after the names of editors and business men as follows: "Bob" Gardner; "Al" Schain (now the financial genius of the campus daily), "Dick" Hatch (the emoting poet on all things spring-like and feminine); George Scanlon (who never got Red and Blue advertisers mixed up with lacrosse players and teams on his schedule) and "Joe" Stiefel (whose commercial perspicacity caused the publishing of thousands of shady Punch Bowls).

Football men we had also, with "Walt" Rosenau, "Herb" Dieter, "Carl" Thomas, "Joe" Straus, "Bill" Wolf and Kamerer. The Varsity crew had in the eight, five members of our class; which is a record not easily emulated. These men Thomas, Ellson, Roberts, Keller and Ames have been assets for two to three years and rank among the country's best oarsmen.

While publication men were busy scribbling and athletes were sleeping through classes, managerial aspirants, those lowliest and most despised creatures, were diligently plying their trade by the hundred—checking up gym credits, writing letters, carrying towels, running errands and collecting tickets. Tracy Purse pulled through the strenuous football competition on top, Elmer Slagle captured the track competition, "Hen" Bonsall and "Wally" Kingsbury in baseball, "Bob" Gardner in basketball, "Cass" Stimson in crew. In the minor sports "Ned" Ramsey pumped up enough soccer balls to hold the managership for two years, guide the team to the collegiate championship and make the game a major sport; "Scotty" Ulmer withstood the splashes of the swimming team with his usual good nature and landed the managing job; Paul Kirchner, one of our diving Veni (plural for Venus), was made wrestling boss, although we all thought the little fellow wouldn't be able to stand the strain.

Before the next big event was staged our redoubtable president enlisted and the heretofore silent chair of vice-president was made use of so that "Bill" Tandy, whose ruddy features you have all seen smiling at you, now started shaking up the class. The Sophomore Ball to which we had all been looking forward loomed up as our first very own entertainment. Under John Lovitt’s chairmanship it was held on the Friday night of the Relays and proved a great success.

Our winter and spring athletes came through strong and ‘Varsity P’s flowed into the records of the class. “Mike” Sweeney and “Dutch” Peck were the backbone of the basketball team; Sweeney, Straus, Burns and Wolfe made the nine and the most unusual honor of a Sophomore captain came to us with the election of “Sherm” Landers as track leader. He was backed up by “Mary” Gustafson and “Snow” Davis of 1920, both of whom were intercollegiate point scorers, and “Gus” rose to the leadership of the spike and cinder team.

Lacrosse with Kerfoot, Frey, Dreyfuss and Temple, the gym team with “Ed” Atlee as a high scorer and “Bill” Brinburst and Paul Keiser in the tank, did much for our class in minor sports.

“The Bridal Not” gave leading parts to two of the class with Earl Harrison as the dashing curly-headed groom and Seymour Heilbron the maid. “Ned” Ramsey continued his good work in the chorus by dancing his way to the presidency of the undergraduate Mask and Wig Club.

When finally our fight took place with the freshmen and scarcely any neither garments were left intact, we considered the year complete and the few remaining who had mastered the elements of military training, survived the pushing in the crowded armory and the map reading from the back rows of lecture rooms packed up for Plattsburg. This part of our history can well be included, for Pennsylvania’s delegation of 150 showed up very well and came away with its share of commissions.

The fall of 1918, with the Junior class pathetically low in numbers, was given over to the S. A. T. C. Informal teams, publications, committees made a feeble attempt to keep up the college spirit with an imitation of by-gone activity. With the armistice and the reopening of college in January we welcomed back to our midst the leaders of other years and other classes. So great was the influx of loyal Pennsylvanians that teams now found themselves with two or three captains and managers, and publications with, in one case, as many as four editors-in-chief.

Too much credit can not be given the men of 1919 who pitched in and made activities a success, backing up President Gardner in hearty co-operation. "Johnny" Titzel now with our class support behind him southpawed his way to new honors on the diamond. "Ham" Cunningham, a former 1919 scribe, was easily the outstanding figure in publication work, and by breaking all previous marks in getting Record subscriptions was chosen to put out the book which now is a lasting tribute to his new class. As editor-in-chief of the Red and Blue too, he has made the arid contributions of ambitious freshmen readable and the magazine popular.

"Wally" Kingsbury and "Hen" Bonsall, "Lee" Judd and "Syd" Thayer, came back to manage their teams in an efficient way. "Hass" Frazier, "Warry" Hampton, "Alex" Wray and Frank Tatnall did their bit in spring athletics; "Roomie" Kreiner came back and gave his services on the class crew and did efficient business work on the Record. "Norm" Oyster amused the boys in the famous Jubilee and "Bob" McMurtrie resumed Mask and Wig as leading man and gloom dispeller.

Of our original boys, "Jim" Bolton, "Russ" Stoughton, "Socks" Brenizer and Earl Harrison, followed Dancing "Ned" into the Mask and Wig Club. "Heinie" Thornton, "Hop" Houley, "Bud" Wiser, Vale Truitt, "Chick" Sebright, "Ed" Tourison and "Walt" Guthrie added their vocal efforts to the Howl Club. Harold Burt, Earl Harrison (that master of all Pennsylvanian activities), who showed he could defend an argument as well as soccer goal, and Seymour Heilbron—these engaged all comers on the forensic platform.

And so the year went round with various doings until our social ambitions hit their goal in the never-to-be-forgotten Junior Week. "Bill" Tandy handled the banquet, "Heinie" Justi the Prom, George Scanlon the theatre party, "Sherm" Landers the Relays Party and Paul Kirchner the luncheons in a way that promoted spirit and good feeling through the class.

Once more minor sports flourished and in their line-ups much 1920 brawn and brain took part. The golf team with that famous captain-managership combination—Rhoads and Càlves—cussed the caddies over Cobbs Creek and Merion. "Phil" Ten Broeck, Gordon Giesecke, "Don" Steele and "Ed" Benson shot up records on the Rifle Team and rang the bull's-eye for the college title. "Don" Leopold, our present class secretary, displayed such good form in his swimming suit that they elected him captain.

Then came the nerve-racking time of elections, but the biggest problem of all was to select the man who could bear the heavy responsibilities of senior president. John Lovitt piled through a field of six candidates and making an inaugural address a la Franklin Society in choice of words proved he was the man. Our senior year opened with true omens of a rebirth of spirit, and to enumerate the deeds the class has done this year and the precedents it is bequeathing would be a lengthy task.

"Heinie" Miller, "Lou" Little, the Wrays, and Captain "Bert" Bell returned to make a successful football season. Frank Tatnall’s ambitious and conscientious efforts at decorating the sidewalks brought out record crowds at the rallies and the Dartmouth send-off and trip was one of real, old-fashioned Pennsylvania pep.

Our Undergraduate Council next made a wise decision and broke away from custom by limiting the big activities of each man and to John Lovitt should go the credit for such a huge and well-planned program. It is sure to make for better college activities. Upon "Stan" Stady fell the task of pulling our class treasury from the bread line, and "Stan," despite all other activities and jobs a-plenty, used his last year’s fiscal experience and put us on our feet again.

"Marv" Gustafson, who jumped from the job of Methodist representative to the presidency of the Christian Association, developed spirit, mind and body as well as track ability and led a heated campaign for more members and supporters. The Wharton Association under "Bob" Gardner’s hand and Earle Van Vliet’s financial ability, and the Arts Association with the fluent Earl Harrison’s guidance loomed up bigger than ever.

Before the Christmas holidays a luncheon was planned. The committee made only one mistake. It forgot to make arrangements with a hotel, restaurant, hash house or other establishment of nourishments. But when it finally was staged it sure was! The biggest social function our class put across was, of course, the Ivy Ball, and long will February 13th be remembered as the day when the classes below admired us for the lavishness of the occasion. "Bob" Gardner engineered the main features and set a good example for the future in the way to serve supper to the carnivorous multitude. After a lot of discussion the mooted All-University Honor Code at last came to a head and Frank Steiner with the departmental representatives had the job of formulating it.

The Interfraternity Agreement was successfully untangled and rushing season honorably engineered by "Johnny" Titzel, president of the council. To show that all was well with fraternities and brotherly love running high, they got together for the first time in an interfraternity dance at the Bellevue.
Harry Keller started his oarsmen early, both indoors and out, and "Dutch" Peck's basketball team just naturally won the collegiate championship. After winning the eastern title, it defeated Chicago in a three-game series which received wide publicity in sporting and police circles. "Mike" Sweeney, the other senior member of the five, brought us fame by being the highest scorer of the league. He had played on this team three years and captained the baseball nine the year before.

And so you see from this chronicle that Nineteen-Twenty has done its share in athletics, publications, dramatics and committees; has held more than its share of highest honors in these fields; and in any new enterprise or program for the good of the University has been ever to the front. It is but fitting, as we are the last class to graduate under Provost Smith, who during our four years has helped and guided us individually and collectively and who now resigns from his respected position that we pledge him the esteem and support we have felt and shown during our college life. Because our eventful and often frivolous doings would not have held the same spirit but for his own radiant loyalty to Pennsylvania, may it ever be recorded that this class in future reunions will be truly grateful for its associations with Dr. Edgar Fahs Smith.

Henry M. Justi, Jr.
In our four years at Pennsylvania we
Have gleaned a background, varied and profound.
A background or foundation which will serve
As well for building good as building ill.
How well our lives are ordered, and what kind
Of men we shall make ourselves
Depends upon the structures thereon reared.
Three capabilities we have received:
The first to enjoy whate'er we read, or see,
Or hear throughout our converse with mankind;
'Tis understanding that our minds have gained.
The second, power—a power for any need,
A power to make the world all good or bad,
To level mountains, fill up seas, or bridge
The chasm's void with man-spun webs of steel,
Command the natural forces, and to make
Them servants to our every beck and call.
The third, the capability to serve—
To serve each other in this world of strife.
Enjoyment, power, service—these are three—
A noble trio! but how poor each one
And paltry, out of company and lone!
Enjoyment alone soon cloys the mind,
And of itself it satiates itself;
While power alone is bootless without end;
And serving cannot be, except for power.
How useless each without another one!
So thus our creed: Develop to the full
These capabilities innate in us;
But so develop them that each shall be Enhanced by each the others, nor shall give
The slightest hurt to persons dwelling by.
Sit thou, and think upon the days gone by,
The days when we were Freshmen, quaking young,
The days when we wore inkspots, and said "Sir",
And called the brothers Beaston "Mister", too.
Those were the days when we were hounded 'round,
And longed for sophomore glory as a crown.
And then a year and we were what we wished:
The new young freshman class was at our heel,
And we were lordly Sophs of vast account.
Then came the Sophomore Ball, and Pants Fight, too.
And we could sit at beer and schnapps besides—
The Normandie our place of rendezvous.
Those times, alas! are gone, they'll not return.
And ye who lightly read this page along
Drop a sad tear for sake of auld lang syne...
But Time pressed on, a war had intervened,
Came Junior Week, Thanksgiving, and what-not,
While midyears passed—a nightmare—and were gone.
Then summer came, and some at Summer School
Saw fit to while away six weeks in sweat;
They worked and hoped and sighed, then came again
And entered on their senior year with us.
Positions on the campus we filled well—
The down town papers marvelled at our thoughts...
But all too soon the end is drawing nigh
With Class Day, graduation and the rest
And soon we'll step forth from our college world
To take our places in the world of men.
But what about deportment after this?
Have we a creed to build our lives upon?
Combine them all and we shall find our lives
The consummation of idyllic charm.

John F. Lewis, Jr.,
Mr. Toastmaster and Fellow Classmates: The pleasure that you have given me in requesting that I entertain you with a résumé of the activities of the members of the Class during the past twenty years is only equaled by my appreciation of the magnitude of the task.

You should be in excellent humor to listen to almost anything after this gorgeous banquet we have just enjoyed. At this time let me express for the Class our deep thanks for the generosity of “Bill” Tandy, the proprietor of the new Philadelphia Hotel. Sort of makes the old Ritz and Bellevue look sick, doesn’t it, boys? However, we are equally indebted for the joy of the evening to the marvelous discovery of the new Nectuer drink by Dr. William Wolfe, the chemical creator. I think that you will agree with me that this drink has all the pep, fizz and kick that any highball at nightfall ever had, without any more ill effects than a glass of Great Bear Spring Water. Directly after the twelve-year fight, ending with the Supreme Court decision by Chief Justice Harold N. Burt, favorable to the constitutionality of prohibition, Bill’s private stock ran out. It can never be said that he wasn’t hospitable to the boys. So then he took up an intensive study of chemistry, assisted by Joseph Straus, and has just perfected the Famous Pink Pellet which we this evening have dropped into a glass of water and transformed into an exhilarating beverage.

I don’t know whether my information regarding the activities of the 1920 men is more complete than that of any one else, except for the opportunity of business contact and advertising service that I have been able to do for some of the boys. I suppose that most of you know that seven years ago, Lincoln Hall, Howard Kreiner, Bernard Scheurer and myself took over the accounts of the N. W. Ayer & Son advertising agency. “Line” is in charge of the New York office, Howard at Boston, “Bernie” in care of Chicago, while I’ve remained about Philadelphia. One of our most successful campaigns has been with the Henry M. Justi Dental Company. The funny thing about this was our old friend “Heinie’s” abhorrence to publicity of any sort. You may recall the time when he and Joseph Pennell delivered a protest talk on the unartistic billboard. Well, I saw that his business was practically static, so our organization analyzed its possibilities in detail and finally won him over. I think I saw a Saturday Evening Post around here. Ah, yes, here it is. This forcible “ad” will enable you to see how in the last five years “Heinnie” cleaned up enough money to be the sole sponsor for the New Wharton School building, that elusive myth of our undergraduate days. Just listen to these striking words.

Oh, yes, here is another one. I feel sure that your attention has been called to the remarkable progress of The Robert Royer Gardner Correspondence Institute of Business Administration. You know “Bob” was always smart enough, but he never did any more work than he had to. As a consequence, a few years after graduation his organization genius manifested itself when he pulled some of those Beta Gamma Sigma sharks, J. M. Keefer, Howard Wilson, Vale Truitt and Frederick Drexler, out of poverty teaching jobs and set them to work condensing the essence of a college education into twenty-four lessons by mail. Now, thanks to “Bob,” the poor farm hand and mill mechanic can learn all that we learned in four years in one-quarter of the time and at one-eighth the price. Let me read you the head-lines of his full-page spread.

If I only had more time, I might read you any number of interesting ads, showing how advertising put the 1920 boys on the map, literally and figuratively. For example, tell me why you are wearing “The Jim Bolton Collar Button,” “The Smart Ray Owen Collar,” “The Famous John Reed Clothes,” “The Hatch One Button Underwear,” “The Martin Garter,” or why you use “A Dan Rhoads Golf Stick,” “The Burnell Sebright Search Light,” “The Dana Wright Rite Fountain Pen” or smoke “A Harry Half Cigar?” Why? Because it pays to advertise, that’s why!

I’m glad to see “Don” Leopold is here this evening, so that I can talk about him with perfect freedom. But surely his round-up of Bathing Beauty Girls, in conjunction with “Ned” Ramsey and “Dutch” Peck forming The Film Flam Flicker Corporation of Atlantic City, is deserving of great comment. “Don,” the only way you can square yourself with this bunch is to arrange for a special showing of your biggest animated splash before the evening is over. How about it? All those in favor of such motions, signify by the raising of the right hand. Carried! It’s up to you now, “Don!”

I don’t know to what extent all of you have been keeping in touch with current University affairs, but at all events the Class of 1920 can be proud to have so many of its men working for their Alma Mater. Ever since 1926 “Mike” Sweeney has been faithfully and successfully coaching Pennsylvania’s Basketball Team, so that it has been able to maintain the Intercollegiate Championship with the start it got in 1920. You may remember also how both the Yale Eights defeated us in our last year. Well, that inspired Dr. Carl Thomas, the noted surgeon, to lend his time in coaching Pennsylvania’s crew after Coach Wright retired in 1928 and he has had the satisfaction of rubbing in a defeat on Yale every year since then. As for track, we have the next best thing in representation there by Howard Gustafason. That boy is a whiz on the cinders. He makes his dad look like a Manayunk street car for speed. As for old “Mary” himself, sorry he couldn’t be here tonight, but he’s too busy making a pile of money. In fact, he is in the dough business, running a large bakery up in James-town, New York. Then we also have the noted Doctor Earl Grant Harrison, on my right, as head of the Christian Association; and on my left there is Doctor Frank Steiner, Dean of Wharton School; and—let me see—I almost forgot. I trust you will pardon me, “Ham,” but all the subscribers of the Pennsylvania Gazette know that Ellwood B. Cunningham is editor as well as the Graduate Manager for non-athletic activities. He’s done a lot to develop it since he took it over. It’s a great paper to keep in touch with the alumni. This advertising is gratis, “Ham.”

And that reminds me, perhaps some of you out-of-town boys don’t know about the new Publication Building that was erected two years after the new Auditorium. It accommodates all the publications; The Pennsylvanian, Punch Bowl, Red and Blue, Class Record, the Gazette, the Alumni Register and, last of all, that recent sensation called "The Co-ed Powder Puff." The benefactor for this valuable addition is "Al" Schain. You remember how in our Senior year he cleaned up so much money on The Pennsylvanian that he had to spend a great share of it in redecorating the old building in order to cut his excess profits tax. His business genius had a real opportunity to expand when he went into the business of producing nitrate from the air. The sky is his limit. He always was clever at getting stuff out of the air in class. Why, I remember, he was sitting right next to me in G. & I. 6 when he got his inspiration to out-nitrate Chile in production.

Do you know that our class has a pretty wide representation. It was only last week that I flew down to Washington in the McCormick Aero-Express, to do a little lobbying with Senator Earle Van Vliet, of Iowa, in preventing the proposed tax on advertising.

He has a powerful lot of influence in the middle west. You see, after graduation he returned to Des Moines, worked on the dailies for a while till he became editor of Successful Farming, and he made such a hit with the rural districts that they soon put him in as Senator. I also was successful in enlisting the support of that fiery orator, Senator Seymour Heilbron of Pennsylvania and the Secretary of the Treasury, Tracy M. Purse. While there I was entertained lavishly by the Honorable Bang How, Chinese Ambassador. You know How was an old 1920 boy. On my return, alighting at the West Philadelphia Aero-Station, I was surprised to see a surging crowd encircling a wildly gesticulating dark-haired orator. Closer investigation proved it to be no other than our old friend "Joe" Schwartz, doing a stumping speech as candidate for Governor on the Socialist ticket. I was surprised, for I thought that that issue had been settled long ago by the League of Nations. You'd never think that "Joe" was such a firebrand to look at him. But, say, do you remember that riot that he started one night in front of the Dorms after the Pennsylvania-Chicago basketball game?

It seems that I have neglected to call your attention to the doings of some of our boys here in city politics, or perhaps it isn't necessary. The newspapers are quick to print all the scandal. You will undoubtedly hear more along this line when Mayor John V. Lovitt speaks. However, I just want to tell you that his untiring reformation has made Philadelphia a greater city than New York. He set Paul Kirchner and Leland Judd at work remodeling Hog Island and the Delaware water front, so that now Philadelphia has the largest terminal facilities in the world. For that beautiful Philadelphia-Camden Bridge, we owe the design to Charles Sommers and the greater task of execution to the engineering firm of Titzel, Tatnall and TenBroeck.

So I might boast on about the great achievements of the Class of 1920, but as there are more speakers on the program which is to be climaxed by the thriller that "Don" has promised, I'd better abbreviate my remarks.

But just one thing more. Some of you might be interested to know about Harry Keller, the old crew man. He tried engineering for a while, but couldn't make it pay enough to satisfy his luxuriant tastes, so he bought Beaston Bros.' old store, erected a new building and is running competition to the Philadelphia Mint. I believe the prophecy on Class Day had him going on the stage, marrying some actress, Irene Bordoni, I think. Oh, he used to be an actor all right, but not that kind. You never can tell about these Class Prophecies, anyway, that's why I have enjoyed this Class get-together twenty years after graduation, for time alone will disclose what we shall do. Twenty years—but it doesn't seem that long, does it?

Well, boys, all drop one of "Bill" Wolf's pink pellets in your goblet and drink a highball for a score and more prosperous years for the Class of 1920.

STANLEY ELMORE STADY.
O Mother Pennsylvania, we gather at this hour
   One common thought in every breast,
To plant a living symbol of our heart's regard,
   A token of our fealty oft expressed.
Departed hosts return: sons who passed before
   Now stand with us beneath thy towers;
And unheard voices, hearts that long were still Mingle their devotions now with ours.

Before us lies the threshold of the years to come,
   That loom ahead as future strife,
And ours is not the choice, we must pass hence
   To meet our portion that is Life.
One hour we pause, we stay our feet
   To take one glance 'long memory's way;
A thousand thoughts of thee surge up anew,
   Thy love o'er all our hearts holds sway.

We entered in thy sacred halls, as children might
   That come and go their devious ways;
A thousand fancies whimsical and unexpressed
   Were then the burden of our days.
And all was but a song, no understanding then
   Had we of parts that must be played
Upon the stage of life. We had no purpose set,
   Yet faced the future unafraid.
These years within thy walls have not been passed
    For naught; for as the craftsman molds
With hands both firm, yet guided true by love,
    Thy hands have tested out the gold
That lay within us, and fashioned it somehow
    Until the stuff that made so real
Our dreams, is made to shine anew. It has Acquired the glow of thine ideals.

Those vague and shallow dreams of ours, desires
    That had no certain object to attain,
Are blended in the vision of a distant goal
    Stern purpose bids us gain.
"Twas with such firm resolve our classmates went
    When dread war came, and from these halls
Thy sons went out, that knew no fear, but sent
    A ready answer to a country's call.

All this was but a drama played again. Behold,
    The pages of thy history boast
A legion of the soldiers of the past;
    And could their spirits speak, a host
Of voices strong would answer now, and prove
    That men who at thy breast are held
Can lay the cap and gown aside, and seek
    With fearless hearts a sterner field.

Now, we would link this hour with the past,
    Unite ourselves with all thy sons;
With those who went before and those who come,
    For in thy arms we are as one.
And we push out from shore to try the deep,
    We mark the parting with this vine,
A growing thing, as is our love, that it
    May e'er for us caress these walls of thine.
May every twisting tendril bind us then
To thee, and every passing day
Make stronger still the bond. And as the vine
Attains new heights, and spreads away
It draws its strength from but one source, the roots;
So we, however far it be
We wander, shall, though seeking new endeavor, draw
Our inspiration all from thee.

That we shall never let thy lessons be forgot,
Or cease a task we have begun;
That we shall worthy be, whate’er the cost,
And act as most befits thy sons;
This be our vow. This verdant ivy vine
Will then perpetual be.
And ever to thy walls O Mother Pennsylvania
Bespeak our pledge to thee.

RICHARD WARREN HATCH.
FELLOW CLASSMATES: We are gathered here to do what for decades has been done by sons of Pennsylvania before us. As we think of the many illustrious men who through the years have taken part in this same ceremony, we must feel a certain tingle of pride and a yearning to prove ourselves their worthy successors.

We are leaving behind us this little token, which from today on we hope may symbolize ourselves. And as we return in future years to admiringly review the halls and campus of our Alma Mater, we shall see what is now this little sprig of ivy, covering the walls above. And it will stand here a challenge to us, as to whether, in greatness and achievement, we have grown as it has grown.

As we look back through our college days, we cannot help but feel how much we really owe to Pennsylvania. Four of the happiest years of our lives are behind us. What can we show for them?

We recall how as Freshmen we came here. With wide-open eyes and expectant hearts we hurried to investigate every nook and cranny of the strange surroundings which for four years we were to proudly call our home. Then, with mingled feelings of awe, pride and youthful delight, we anxiously plunged into the inspiring strangeness of a new life—that of a great university. As we came in contact with each other in classroom and campus, we formed close friendships which we may always cherish among our dearest possessions.

But, also, at the same time we felt a new experience. We suddenly found how much our thoughts and ways of living differed from those of others. We began to realize perhaps for the first time how really small and narrow we were. For the first time we began to examine ourselves, and the discoveries were quite astounding. We found that we had been living entirely within ourselves. Our visions were small, our interests few and selfish, our ways of living conventional, our thoughts superficial, prejudiced and distorted.

Under the excellent guidance of our instructors, to whom we owe so much, we learned to think in terms of new values. We learned to analyze and to interpret. Things assumed a new significance. We cast off our shackles of narrow provincialism and our horizons widened. Now that we had learned to quit taking it for granted that our thoughts were right, our thoughts became sincere. We now grew to understand other men’s viewpoints. Classmates, as we leave this dear University, can we not be truly thankful that she has taught us this great thing—to think for ourselves and to seek the truth?

As our vine of ivy has until now been cultivated, so for four years has Pennsylvania and her faculty cultivated us. As we are transplanting this vine into a new environment, so today are we being transplanted. We are now to leave our life of books, athletics and campus activities and enter into new surroundings.

We enter a world confronted with great economic, political and social problems. Mere mention of such words as illiteracy, poverty, labor, capital, League of Nations and politics, suggests huge present-day problems. They are problems that will tax to the utmost the best of educated men, and they are problems which can never be solved by people looking on from the sidelines. We must guard against any spirit of indifference, any sideline willingness on our part to “let the other fellow do it.” It is our job to get into the game of life and to do our level best to see that the game is played squarely.

In no matter what field of activity each of us may engage, there is a man’s work waiting to be done. And for every field of activity the world is seeking men of high ideals and men who also have the courage to live out those high ideals in the sight of other men.

We now come to plant this sprig of ivy. It will grow as we have grown. It will spread its twigs out in all directions. Like this ivy, we the Class of Nineteen-Twenty are about to spread, reaching with our human twigs into all parts of the country and into all corners of the earth.

We know how often ivy spreads over old defective buildings, obscuring their imperfections and making them green and beautiful. Inspired by the ideals of Pennsylvania, we shall spread over the imperfect buildings of civilization, obscuring defects not by covering them but by mending them, making the buildings of civilization beautiful throughout the world.

What else does ivy do? Through long years it withstands the stress of time and the elements. It is easy for us to go out from here today, dreaming fine dreams and making good resolutions. But will we endure—as the ivy? Will we withstand the test of life’s buffets, temptations, trials and discouragements? Our great hope is in the strong framework of ideals which Pennsylvania has built for us. To stand life’s tests, we must continue Pennsylvania’s work. To endure, we must make on that strong framework a sturdy structure of real manhood. We must make a structure built on a firm foundation of truth and of sincerity.

HAROLD N. BURT.
THE finale has come; the curtain is about to fall. We have been the players in this four-act piece of drama. Here within these ivy-overgrown walls, has been our stage. We, the performers, are assembled for the climax and the end. Today we depart from Pennsylvania,—she who, during these four acts, has nurtured, cherished, and loved us as we have loved her. Tomorrow, we separate to different scenes.

Ours has been an interrupted performance. While we were yet in the opening act as Freshmen, confused and perplexed by the new conditions under which we found ourselves in this great University, the world war descended upon us. It was not unexpected. We well knew that the world could not long exist "half autocratic and half democratic." The play now took on a new appearance and called for a change of costume. The smartly tailored clothes of the performers were replaced by the less pretentious and in most cases the ill-fitting khaki. The newly constructed plot compelled us actually to salute not only some of our own classmates but even underclassmen. Then one by one and score by score we left to take our places. Many were fortunate to have a part in the great drama overseas, and a few gave to democracy the highest gift within their power—their life. We, as a Class, honor them.

When, at last, the great forces of democracy overpowered those of autocracy, the scene shifted back to the University. All over our nation, thousands of men poured into the educational institutions, realizing that further preparation was necessary for the great period of reconstruction.

Despite the unsettled conditions of the last two years, we have had an opportunity to see much of the real University life. During these days, our life, for the most part, has been confined to this campus—here have been centered all our hopes, our aims, and our accomplishments. While the outer world has been attempting to readjust itself, we have been busily occupied with our activities. These have much that was work, but more that was play. We strove to strengthen many of our campus institutions; we waxed eloquent in our desire to pass "big bills;" we played our games, published our papers, and had our numerous elections. It was a happy existence!

We hope that much of what we have accomplished here is significant and will remain, but we realize that the work before us means more. Our effort here has been merely preparation. We glow, we are consumed with eagerness to commence the work, with the anticipation of whose glorious result our whole souls are on fire. The times we are living in will not permit delay or even indifference on our part. The most important crisis of our life calls, trumpet-tongued, for immediate energy and action. We are now men and must accept in the highest mind the obligation which rests heavily upon us.

Classmates, we are about to face the world. Freely have we received, freely let us give. Men of the Class of Nineteen-Twenty—“Do not pray for easy lives. Pray to be stronger men. Do not pray for tasks equal to your powers. Pray for powers equal to your tasks. Then the doing of your work shall be no miracle; but you shall be a miracle. Every day you shall wonder at yourself, at the richness of life which has come to you by the grace of God.”

Vale, Pennsylvania! Part, we must, but in our veins ever shall flow the blood of the Red and Blue. Pennsylvania, vale! May we by our lives bring honor and glory to thee!

EARL GRANT HARRISON.
WHAT in the world should one say in a note like this intended for a Class Record?

The historian of the Class will tell of the valorous deeds and triumphs of the Class, the prophet will, with seer-like vision, picture the Class members as they will be fifty years hence, and the poet and orator will bring in everything else worthy of being recorded and sent down to posterity as tokens of the greatness of the Class; but the poor, semi-occasional contributor will be left to scratch his wits for but a single thought which, if perchance it reaches the day, will cause the reader to wonder what it all means. But here goes! The plunge is made, and the thought handed to the Class of 1920 reads thusly:

Everywhere in the University's history, where loyalty to her is mentioned—merely mentioned—the word begins with a big L. Today, when the world is swinging to and fro in reckless fashion, and many human souls seem bent on demolition, destruction, and despair, it should behoove us to turn back to the fathers who gave us the University, and note how they regarded their educational home. They carried it safely through many crises, viz., the Revolutionary days, the days of 1812—the Mexican period; the Civil War; the unpleasantness with Spain, and loved it—true to it in all its ventures in the interest of humanity. It has ever reached out welcoming arms to all who sought its halls and did for them, regardless of fee or reward.

This old University which 1920 leaves, frowned down selfishness; it encouraged progress but turned from revolution. In short, the University stands for the right and the noblest and best in everything. We who are of it may be confident that at all times it will be in safe and wise hands, who ask only that its children, wherever they may be, shall loyally sustain the home folks in their efforts.

Let the talisman of the Class of 1920 be Loyalty and Unselfishness—Loyalty to Alma Mater, to home, to country!

AMONG the numerous campus organizations established in the interest and for the welfare of Pennsylvania, there is none that deserves more honorable mention and sincere appreciation from the students than does the Arts Association. Organized in 1914 for the purpose of giving get-together smokers, lecture series and to promote all-round good fellowship among the student body, it has never lost sight of these aims, and has accomplished much for the students of the College.

Great impetus was given the Association during our Freshman year by the nation wide celebration of American Drama and its success in carrying out a most notable series of lectures. The year commenced with a very successful smoker at which Dr. D. J. McCarthy of the American Ambulance Service, formerly of the Medical School, and Provost Smith delivered very helpful and inspiring talks. Among those of prominence who addressed us in the lecture series were Otis Skinner, the actor; Augustus Thomas, the playwright, and Dean Arthur H. Quinn. Percy Mackaye, the dramatist, and William Gillette, the actor and playwright, also entertained us on several occasions.

The depletion of our ranks as the result of the war, the presence of the S. A. T. C. and the period of reconstruction, slowed down and to some extent handicapped the Association during our Sophomore and Junior years. In spite of these conditions, however, lectures were held at intervals and the admirers of art and literature were entertained by Professor Albert Joseph Louvain, of Belgium, who delivered a very inspiring address on Belgium and Democracy. Professor Albert J. Carnoy, Professor Cornelius Weygandt, Mr. W. E. Lawrence, Dr. Hugh Gibson and Professor William E. Lingelbach all responded to the appeal of the student body and delivered interesting addresses during these years. This year has been unquestionably the Associations' banner year. Commencing early in the fall with the slogan “Four Hundred or Bust,” a very successful drive for membership was made. It resulted in obtaining a membership far over the four hundred mark. A rousing White Button Smoker was held early in the year at which the speakers were Dr. William C. Farabee, member of the Peace Commission and head of the University Museum, on “The College Man at the Peace Conference,” and Professor J. P. W. Crawford of the Department of Romance Languages on “The College Course of Tomorrow.”

A series of lectures was conducted, including such prominent men as William Webster Ellsworth of the Century Printing Company, who spoke on “Forty Years of Publishing;” Sir Johnson Forbes-Robertson, noted tragedian, who entertained us on the subject of “Shakespeare and His Art;” Robert Frost, the famous international poet, who discussed “What is New in Poetry,” and Alfred Noyes. In order not to be confined solely to subjects on art and literature a series of lectures by prominent men, well known in the business world, was carried out successfully during the spring term.

Since the founding of the Association no class has taken a more active interest in the organization than ours. Every year at least one member of the class held a position among the officers. During the Freshman year, “Johnny” Lovitt and George Vardy were numbered among the staff of officers, while “Ham” Cunningham occupied the office of secretary. “Dan” Rhoads, “Johnny” Lewis and “Ed” Pollard have been prominent in the work of the Executive Committee. Earl Harrison served as vice-president of the Association in our Junior year and he was further honored by being elected to lead the work during the past year.

No one realizes better than we, who are leaving, the great amount of good that the Arts Association has done for Pennsylvania and it is with sincere regret that we have to withdraw from the beneficial influences of such a worthy organization. We are glad that the College men of our class saw to it that the Association was run so efficiently during the last year when the burden of leadership was theirs. May the good work they started continue.
To all students of the time-worn halls of Logan Hall, the Wharton Association means the Honor System and Smokers. During our four years or more spent in learning how to tell what the future has in store in courses under Dr. Huebner; how to sell something the public does not want in Dr. Hess' classes, and of the intricacies of the banking systems by Dr. Mead, the Wharton Association has been the leading organization in furthering the Honor System and in bringing the students into closer harmony with the faculty of the Wharton School and with one another.

Of course, all Freshmen are inveigled into signing up for everything and for that reason most of us became members of the Association. Smokers were always attractive and some of the speakers during the first term were Dean McClellan, Dr. Lichtenberger, Coach Wright and Major Kelly. Then there were always several acts by members of the Mask and Wig Club. The annual banquet was a grand success and the slogan of this representative gathering was "Boost the Honor System." Our Freshman honor representative was F. Smalley, while Bill Tandy served on the executive committee.

During the Sophomore year we had more smokers and the task of making them enjoyable fell to the lot of the Provost and Vice-Provost, Dr. J. Russell Smith, who has left the familiar walls of the Logan Hall to further the study of Geography and Industry at Columbia University. Tandy again held his position on the executive committee.

committee, with A. Stern as honor representative. At the next elections George Scanlon was appointed to the Executive Committee, Tracy Purse was given the position of writing up the minutes and the man who held the purse strings was Earle Van Vliet.

In the Junior year the war caused a slight interruption in the activities of the Association and the Honor System was put to its greatest test during the regime of the Students’ Army Training Corps. It survived this critical period. A committee was appointed to aid the Freshmen in every possible way so that the Honor System would receive their support. As a memorial to the late Major Ward Pierson, the popular professor and soldier, who lost his life just before the signing of the armistice, a portrait of him, painted by Mrs. George Nitzsche, was presented to the University on Commencement Day.

With the war a thing of the past and all activities in pre-war condition, the Wharton Association was rejuvenated under the guidance of Robert Gardner, who has ever been active in campus affairs. H. R. Beck has helped them as vice-president and Howard Kreiner represented us on the Honor Committee. A campaign for new members netted over one thousand, showing that the students were again supporting their organization. Judge Buffington gave an interesting lecture on “Free Speech” under the auspices of the Association.

A new sort of a smoker was given under the auspices of Logan Hall itself. This was in the form of a fire started in the basement and going through the building at such a rapid rate as to cause the abandonment of all classes for three days. To be sure, this met with the approval of the student body and all agree that this was the most popular smoker ever given by the Wharton Association. Classes during the renovating of the building were held in all schools and it was during this time that the campaign “See Your University” was promulgated by the Wharton students as they had to travel to the Law School, the Medical School and the Engineering Building. The delay was soon remedied and the entrance into Logan Hall has been brightened considerably by the addition of much needed paint and new electric lights.

It was during our Senior year that a new dean took his office, as Dean McClellan was succeeded by Dr. Emory Johnson, who is recognized as the leading authority on railroad transportation in the country. As the Wharton Association feels that its Honor System is one of the best that can be obtained, it started the campaign for an All-University Honor Code, modeled after that of the Wharton School. Now the only thing needed to be undertaken by this Association to make it the most successful undergraduate body is to create a substitute for Logan Hall in the form of a new and up-to-date building wherein the creative genius as well as the financial and business abilities of the members of the Wharton School may be increased to the highest degree possible.

ALBERT E. WESTOVER, JR.
GENTLEMEN: allow me to present to you the Architectural Department of the University of Pennsylvania. You have met its students before, late at night, possibly, a weary and grotesque procession of figures bristling with boards and T-squares, wending its way to the dormitories. You have seen them of a spring afternoon scattered around over the campus trying to make pictures with a sketch block, a few colors and a lot of enthusiasm. Perhaps you have been with them in college classes, and watched their efforts to keep awake long enough to lay down the customary but always original and necessary bluff. And if you have talked with them, they have filled you with a long story of endless competitions, of sleepless nights and of intermittent work. If you are of a curious nature, you have more than once wondered what it is all about.

So, perhaps, you should be told as a matter of University pride, the pride you have in a championship Architectural Department. These students about whom you have occasionally wondered—are part of the squad, out of which year after year a few coaches like Professors Laird, Cret, Everett and Dawson have whipped a team of designers that has consistently won from all other colleges and universities in America. For the decade before the war, the department's record was 55 per cent of the places in all the open competitions in America. Now, with the same teaching staff as before the war, the department is trying to re-establish the spirit, and develop the talent that will equal and excel if pos-possible that record. And there are certain signs worth noticing in passing. In the Paris Prize of 1920, open to all architects of American citizenship under thirty-one years of age, Pennsylvania took three of the seven places. Six men are entered for the Rome contest. For the past years the New York juries have been busy hanging medals upon Pennsylvania projects in the Beaux-Arts Competitions.

It takes work, hard work and persistent work, to establish a reputation like that—and to uphold it—for it is coming up for test in some competition almost every month. And it takes a finely organized and inspired department to be able to stand up under it. In this reason you will find a warmer, more original and busier intra-nural spirit in the Architectural Department than in any other phase of campus endeavor. If you don't believe it—come down to a smoker, and see with your own eyes the home-painted scenery rivaling Urban, costumes the envy of Robert Jones, and acting the despair of a Bernhardt. Or come down some evening during Charette, when the boys have to work all night and have taken special precautions to see that they are not going to be bored. You might think you were visiting a delegation of diplomats—until you were assured that the Massier had declared a "formal charette" and that everyone had responded by wearing his evening clothes, with appropriate alterations and additions. Listen to the orchestra and watch the 'cellist do his monkey on a chain act—the black ties are for Bills Project. It is dead, you know; died the night he went out with P. D. "Larrie Feed the Lions," "Eddie, saw a little wood." Or, better still, come down on the night of a ball like the Greek Ball of 1920. When the whole draughting room was decorated as the Delphi Oracle, where Alexander (no less than the celebrated M. Cret himself) led his victorious army in triumph—and where he celebrated with royal splendor his victories in Persia and Egypt. You would have enjoyed seeing Cleopatra—and those Greek maidens! Everyone was in costume of the period. It was a party and good for the eyes—one you would remember and recall when in the days to come you pick up your daily paper and read that again the Pennsylvania Architects have "cleaned up."
At last we have graduated. Despite the hard work which made the four years seem so long, we will never forget the good times together and the friendships formed.

Intensive courses in chemistry and physics were most annoying obstacles during our freshman year. Having safely passed through these, however, we were awarded by an easy stretch in our sophomore year. It was during this period that Firman Warwick made the Varsity Baseball Team as catcher, which position he has held ever since. “Bill” Russell’s pet hobbies were Track and Soccer while “Bert” Levy confined himself to Basketball. “Don” Steel’s accuracy in plugging the bull’s eye secured him a place on the rifle team and “Sam” Gerson made good as a wrestler, being promoted to captain of the team in his senior year. In his spare moments, “Sam” played Chess. It was then, also, that “Russ” Stoughton got his start in the Mask and Wig, being elected to the undergraduate club that year.

Aside from activities, our sophomore year was spent in looking forward with little enthusiasm to the Summer Survey which would rob us of exactly one month of our vacation. About the first of May, Professor Ingram informed us that instead of going to Laporte, Pa., as had been the custom in the past, we would survey the country about Darby Creek.

Despite the possibility of commuting, “Bill” Russell suggested a camping party and “Charley” Hammer, “Sam” Bradley and, after much difficulty, “Russ” Stoughton, were included. Later another camping party composed of “Don” Steel, “Ayjay” Schob, “Pete” Peters, “Tommy” Roy and Firman Warwick, was formed.

The first of June found two large tents side by side, completely equipped, on a magnificent camp site in an open space in the woods, along the bank of a wide creek. In the tents was to be found everything from salt and pepper to “Sam’s” sacred bicycle, which was strangely punctured every time Warwick went for a ride.

Nine o'clock every morning found us waiting at Wilfong's barn for the arrival of the professors.

The first two weeks of the Survey were spent in topographical work, which, everybody agreed, was more interesting than the railroad work that followed in the last two weeks. One of the most interesting spots to survey was Murphy's Farm where brutal looking dogs; pretty little girls; dates; and fudge parties (the latter for the campers only) were supplied in abundance. Despite the fact that an elevation was lost occasionally, our work was quite accurate, the most accurate man in the party being Frank Stover, who always carried a magnifying glass and read to the millionths of an inch.

In our anxiety to feed "friend prof" handsomely, lunch time always proved to be the most exciting time of the day. Our work stopped promptly at four o'clock, according to "union time," and after a swim, or rather a wade, white flannels were donned. Supper in real banquet style was served in Wilfong's dining room where Cox, the star boarder, "got away" with most of the food. A streak of gray hair in "Charley" Hammer's hair may still be seen and is unquestionably due to his worry as to whether the Navy could get along without him. The evenings were spent walking along the shady roads arm in arm to the accompaniment of questionable harmony, or listening to Murphy's trick victrola.

An attempt by "Russ" Stoughton to murder the camp one night certainly threw a scare into us and nearly resulted disastrously, for "Charley" Hammer, not accustomed to early morning attacks, pulled the covers over his head and grabbing his automatic began shooting bullets through the top of the tent. Well, old "Russ" got scared and emerged from behind his tree in short order much to the relief of all. Thus the time passed merrily on and it was not until some weeks later that we fully appreciated the benefits derived from the trip. Not only had we learned surveying and had jolly times, but the class was bound together in a closer relationship that would never have been accomplished otherwise. The impressions received then will remain with us as typical of our college days.

The junior year opened with the prospect of much work, and, attired in misfitting uniforms, we found ourselves part of the “Trick Army,” better known as the “Safe at the College Brigade.” Many of us enlisted in some branch of the active service. We soon quit the job of playing soldier, however, and went once more to work. The Towne Scientific School dance found us all present and proved to be a great success. “Sam” Bradley thought so much of certain junior courses that he decided to take them over again after resting a semester.

The senior year opened, and due to the resignation of Professor Easby, we were without a head of our department. It was not long, however, until Professor Milo S. Ketchum came from the University of Colorado to fill the vacancy. Under him the department has made great progress, and the day is not far off when this University will be able to boast of a civil engineering department superior to any in the country. The big event of this year was the Engineers’ show, revived again and managed by “Russ” Stoughton. A greater success was impossible with “Ayjay” Schob in the leading female part as “Cecilia.”

To the many men who have returned from the service and joined our class, we extend the sincerest welcome, and in the same breath congratulations on their graduation. To our classmates who have been compelled to leave college and to those who still remain, we extend our heartiest wishes for success and achievement.

OUR first intimation that the life we had chosen—that of an engineer—had any redeeming features was the Freshman reception tendered to us by the upper-classmen. There we met our new instructors socially, found that they were human after all and, incidentally, enjoyed ourselves thoroughly. So inspired, we engineers began our careers, and in spite of the work, found time to take part in some outside affairs, as four of the Freshman class officers, including “Johnny” Carter as president, were Towne Scientific School men. Dramatically our début was made in “In Bad in Badinbad,” the Engineers’ Show that year, Ramsey and Shoemaker getting parts in the dancing chorus. As good Freshmen we lent the Engineers’ dance in May our best support.

The next fall found most of us Sophomores and we turned our attention to the R. O. T. C. The Junior year found our class scattered; few were back in the S. A. T. C. But following the armistice conditions improved. We returned to college and spent a frantic five months from the first of the year getting caught up in the work we had missed.

We began 1919 as Seniors, and this year of 1919–20 has been a banner one. The season began with the traditional Freshman reception early in October, and the Freshmen seemed to enjoy themselves immensely and to feel quite impressed at making our acquaintance.
A month later the three Engineering societies—Whitney, Civil and Electrical—united in purpose if not in name, held a combined meeting in the Architectural Building, at which C. M. Schwab spoke. His subject, the new Philadelphia subway, so impressed us that many accepted his kind invitation to look over the work, and we had a very pleasant afternoon under the City Hall foundations.

The Towne Scientific Show was next on the program. "Much Ado About Nothing Much" was the well-chosen title, and its successful production may be attributed to the work of Russell Stoughton as general chairman of the committee, to William McIntyre as coach of the cast and, last but not least, to Frank Tatnall as stage manager, chief carpenter and general "goat."

Rife, Lion, Kirkbride, Yost, Holcombe, Schob, Powell, Russell, Haines and Hammer were members of the cast and chorus. So great was the success of the production that plans for a permanent Engineers' theatrical club, modeled after the Mask and Wig Club, have been drawn up.

In January, H. B. Taylor, vice-president of the Cramp Shipbuilding Company, gave an address before the combined societies on the business side of engineering. A five-reel film on college life also helped to make the evening a success.

Then in March came the mechanical trip. Under Dr. Fernald we spent two weeks visiting plants all over the country and building up a large acquaintance with Pullman porters. We even resorted to visiting in St. Louis some of the relics of the days before July 1, namely, deserted and empty breweries.

The Electricals, under the guidance of Dr. Pender, established a student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in their Junior year, and under the leadership of McIntyre staged a very successful dinner dance this spring.

The Civil Engineers welcomed a new head this year, Professor Ketchum; and in order to properly install him in office the Society tendered him a dinner at the Normandie in November.

In May we held our big social affair, the Towne Scientific Dance. This month saw the close of one of the most successful and interesting years ever passed in the Engineering building.

DRAMATICS

MASK AND WIG

Philomatheam Zelosophic

Engineers' Show Cerle Francis
It is difficult to say whether it was the fascination of donning skirts and paint, the splendid and extensive trips, or the fame of Mask and Wig that attracted us most "to the boards." At any rate, quite a few of our class have played a part in the history of that renowned dramatic organization during the past four years while the rest of us have had to pay the high prices to sit and watch them perform. But, of course, any Pennsylvania man who has once seen the "Wiggers trip with the light fantastic toe" would not miss another show even if he had to stag it.

It has been our good fortune, as a class, to be with the Mask and Wig during three periods and three different kinds of productions—the pre-war, then two shows during the war period and the one post-war. It was in "Rip Van Winkle" that the numerals 1920 began first to appear after names in the Mask and Wig program. Of the present Senior Class, including those men of former classes whose graduation was postponed by the war, there were just ten men to appear in that first production of our undergraduate days, and to show how much influence we had, the performance was pronounced one of the best in Mask and Wig's history. "Bob" McMurtrie starred as Mr. Rippington Van Winkle, himself. "Byrd" Epps and "Sox" Brenizer both "shook mean toes" in the first chorus, while "Ned" Ramsey, "Doug" Kingston, "Tink" Bell, and "Les" Grove featured in the second chorus. F. T. Lord and W. P. Buchannan lent their voices to help the Glee Chorus and J. V. Calhoun stood by as an alternate in case anybody died.

We increased our representation to an even dozen in "The Bridal Not," the thirtieth annual production. Looking around for someone to be a confused, perplexed and sufficiently excited groom, "Charlie" Morgan selected no other than Earl Harrison, himself. Earl then proceeded to get the plot all balled up, so that instead of marrying the real bride, he took unto himself a vampish maid, who, minus the skirts and veil, was Seymour Heilbron. “Ned” Ramsey, “Byrd” Epps, “Russ” Stoughton and Warren Shoemaker were sufficiently light on their feet (and others) to make the first chorus, while big “Jim” Bolton surprised us by his agility in the second line. “Line” Hall, “Heinie” Thornton, “Bud” Weiser, “Ig” Houley and “Chic” Sebright “put the nightingale to shame” in the Glee Chorus.

Last year in the “Revue of Revues,” which rivaled the liveliest Follies ever presented, despite the comparatively short period between the close of the world war and its appearance, found us again doing our part in each of the departments. Earl Harrison appeared in three numbers in the cast—most notable and to us the most surprising of which was the famous “Shimmie” act. It was shortly after this that the law against such dancing was passed. “Ned” Ramsey led the first chorus during this thirty-first production and his duet dance with George Kneass will long be remembered by all of us. “Russ” Stoughton, “Sox” Brenizer, and “Jim” Bolton were again among the dancers of the first chorus. “Ted” Wright appeared in the ranks of the second chorus. “Heinie” Thornton, “Ig” Houley and “Eddie” Tourison again helped out the Glee Club, while E. H. Chapin jazzed around quite a bit in the Jazz Orchestra.

The stage was all very properly set that the thirty-second production should be the best in the history of Mask and Wig, and many of us think that it was. We were very fortunate to welcome into our class many of the ’18 and ’19 men. “Don Quixote, Esq.” had an all star cast and a splendid dancing chorus. “Bob” McMurtrie made a lasting name for himself by his splendid portrayal of Don Quixote. He kept the audience in an uproar from start to finish by his excellent characterization of the famous Don. Earl Harrison appeared to advantage in the role of the dignified and pompous Governor of Barataria. “Eddie” Longstreth, better known as the “Cleopatra” of “Rip Van Winkle, Jr.,” was certainly a regular Spanish Kitchen Vamp. When it comes to a female vamp, “Eddie” is in a class by himself. Many familiar faces appeared in the dancing choruses. Of course, “Ned” Ramsey was there to lead the “fair ones,” while handsome “Russ” Stoughton led the men. “Les” Grove, “Byrd” Epps and “Sox” Brenizer of '18 and '19 fame, couldn't resist the call of the paint and powder once more. "Jim" Bolton again hauled his 6' 3" around in great shape in the first chorus, while Harry Robb did the same stunt in the next chorus, with Horace Montgomery standing by as alternate. In the Glee Chorus "Eddie" Tourison, "Heinie" Thornton, "Bud" Weiser and F. M. Maryott rendered "Charlie" Gilpin's songs with a splendid, sparkling, Spanish twang.

To many of us, Mask and Wig has been one of the leading activities of the campus. During the past two years, the name of "Ned" Ramsey has been synonymous with Mask and Wig. "Ned" made a most efficient president of the Undergraduate Club for both seasons. By virtue of their splendid work, "Russ" Stoughton, "Sox" Brenizer, "Jim" Bolton, "Eddie" Longstreth, "Bob" McMurtrie, Earl Harrison, "Linc" Hall, "Heinie" Thornton and "Eddie" Tourison were also elected to undergraduate membership of the Mask and Wig Club. They have been largely responsible for the success of the last few years. Despite the war, the continuity of the show was preserved. "Charlie" Morgan is perfectly willing to admit that there are some fairly respectable actors and dancers in our midst, while "Charlie" Gilpin waxes enthusiastic about the manner in which we rendered his "hits." So we are proud of our Mask and Wig record and glad that so many of our number did such excellent work in all of the shows. Whenever we think of the happy days we have spent here at Pennsylvania—and that quite often—some of the most pleasant will be those associated with Mask and Wig. In departing we extend our best wishes to the Club—may Mask and Wig continue to bring fame to Pennsylvania.

By the opening of the Sophomore year our country was deeply engaged in the World War and many of our number had joined the colors and were already playing at bigger things. However, many of us were, as yet, still wearing “civies” and attempting to exist through meatless and coalless days. With the addition of a number of Freshmen, the available musical material was coached into a harmonious organization. This was in a large measure due to the excellent work of “Dick” Weaver, who was secured to coach the Instrumental Clubs in the absence of Paul Eno, who had gone into military service. Those of us singing in the Glee Club that year were: W. J. Shanahan, E. Kimber, John Noble, E. T. Buckenmaier, W. J. Kam, S. W. Beck, “Linc” Hall, R. J. Schull, “Chick” Sebright, “Bud” Weiser, “Heinie” Thornton; while W. F. Meyers, “Russ” Stoughton, “Phil” Amram, “Chet” Frey, “Charlie” Martin, “Eddie” Chapin, “Dick” Swanson were among those who tried to appear comfortable in full dress while playing mandolins and other instruments. Our out-of-town concerts were few and far between this year, there being only one which was at Wilson College in Chambersburg. The remainder of the concerts were given in various clubs, churches and for the entertainment of soldiers.

In the fall of 1918 the S. A. T. C. was established at the University and the Musical Clubs, like other University organizations, could not continue under those conditions. During this period, when the government was in control of Pennsylvania, the organization of the clubs was not attempted. At the opening of the regular academic work after Christmas, the clubs “came back.” The enthusiasm and renewed interest in the regular campus activities were as apparent in the musical line as in others, and with the addition of “Hap” Houley, Vail Truitt and “Eddie” Tourison to the ranks of the would-be Carusos, a most successful club came into being. A number of very attractive concerts were arranged for by “Jack” Hart, who assumed the responsibilities of graduate manager. A successful campus concert was held and the usual Bellevue performance took place. “Jack” immediately took his accustomed interest in this activity, as he has in all others, and managed the clubs through a very successful year.

In this, our Senior year, the clubs have regained their prestige of pre-war times and the members of the Class of 1920 and those who have joined with it, have played no small part. Offers of engagements this year were so numerous that our able manager and graduate manager, "Swede" Wright and "Jack" Hart, were forced to refuse many. Consequently, one of the best rounded lists of concerts was prepared that Pennsylvania's musical organizations have ever secured.

In New York, the night before the Pennsylvania-Dartmouth football game, a joint musical clubs concert was held with the Dartmouth clubs at the Hotel Pennsylvania. It is needless to say the concert was a great success. The combination of two such representative clubs as that of Dartmouth and our own, without doubt, was pleasing to all present.

In this first concert, all selections were ably rendered and it was apparent that the clubs possessed the proper amount of "pep" which is so necessary in University clubs. That this was true, was proven by the applause and appreciation shown in New York. This ability to please can be credited to our able leaders, "Linc" Hall of the Glee Club, and "Charlie" Martin of the Mandolin Club, who are among the most competent directors that Pennsylvania clubs have possessed. Among the musical hits of the evening, "Linc" Hall's "Because," Jepson's Serenade from "The Jewels of the Madonna" and the Rain Song rendered by the instrumental clubs, stood out prominently. The curtain rose and fell, but not without allowing the presence of P. N. Jepson, A. M. Martin, G. C. Emory, "Bill" Guthrie, "Bob" McMurtrie, W. M. Goldsmith, "Ed" Rowland, M. R. Orr of the Glee Club, and P. F. Taylor, L. M. Bentley and H. E. Hattersley of the Mandolin Club, to be noticed.

On the way back from the big city, the residents of Orange, New Jersey, were given the opportunity to hear the clubs. A trip was made to Ogontz Seminary later and one to Girard College.

One concert of the Musical Clubs that is always popular, is the annual combined entertainment given by the Cornell and Pennsylvania clubs on the eve before the Thanksgiving game. This year was no exception, unless it can be said that the concert was even more popular than before. The feeling between the clubs being less keen than that of the teams on the field, a very enjoyable time was had by both Pennsylvania and Cornell men.

Following soon afterward came the first campus concert and a trip to Beechwood School at Jenkintown. Both were very successful, as was also the University Extension recital in Witherspoon Hall. A week-end trip was taken to Scranton and Wilkes-Barre where the up-staters were given a treat in the musical line. Soon afterward concerts were given at the Philadelphia Girls' Normal School, Media, and at the Germantown Association Hall. Another campus concert followed which was even better than the former one, then the Harrisburg trip, and a concert at Stetson Auditorium. This last closed the musical season for the clubs, but many of the men helped to make the annual Mask and Wig performance, "Don Quixote, Esq.," one of the best ever produced.

We are confident that the excellent standard of the Musical Clubs will be maintained in the future and we wish the clubs to come the greatest of success.
The greatest thing ever done in the field of Minor Dramatics at Pennsylvania was the "Masque of the American Drama," which the combined Philomathean and Zelosophic societies staged in our Freshman year. The spectacle portrayed the history and development of the drama in America from the first play, "The Prince of Parthia," in 1767, to the present time. We were too insignificant then to be charged with any executive duties, but several of us received more or less prominent rôles in the cast or chorus, and so we can claim our share of the glory which resulted from this unique achievement.

The Philomathean Society has done much to bring out the latent dramatic talent of the undergraduate body by means of its "Playshop." In our Sophomore year, three original plays, the winning manuscripts of an all-university competition, were put on the boards and were received with a welcome that would have warmed the heart of a professional playwright. Last year the society undertook to revive the interest in Russian literature, and, accordingly, produced four short plays by Chekov, one of which was rendered in the original language, Urban T. Holmes taking the leading part. This year the "Playshop" was revived and a program of four original plays was presented early in March. "Oh, Eau," a playlet by John O. Clark, on the prohibition theme, was one of the hits of the evening. Later in the year, the best of the Irish drama was assembled at one of the downtown theatres. Synge's "The Shadow of the Glen," Yeats' "The Land of Heart's Desire," "The Singers" by Padraic Pearse, and "The Rising of the Moon" by Lady Gregory, were produced with great success.

While Philo has been developing original talent and stimulating interest in foreign drama, the Zelosophic Society has made a decided attempt to promote the American drama. The two comedies, "What Happened to Jones" and "The Man on the Box," were given during our second year. Last year "Fashion" by Anna Cora Mowatt was revived. This year two performances were given. A program of four one-act plays, "Barbara," "Allison's Lad," "Suppressed Desires" and "The Wonder Hat," was offered early in the second semester. In May, "The Broker of Bogota" was produced for the first time in years. The author, Robert Montgomery Bird, graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Medical School in 1827, a fact which gave added interest to the performance.

During our four years, Le Cercle Français, in conjunction with the Salon Français, has presented four French comedies in the original tongue. In 1916, "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" by Molière was offered, followed the next year by "Le Malade Imaginaire" by the same author. Last year, a modern play, "Miquette et sa Mère," was offered, but this year the scene shifted back to Molière and "Les Femmes Savantes," a social comedy in verse, was given at the Bellevue.

This article would not be complete without mention of the Engineers' Show, which is becoming more and more like the Mask and Wig. The show this year, "Much Ado About Nothing Much," was written by Runcie Tatnall and coached by "Ned" Ramsey and "Russ" Stoughton.

REALIZING that there was no more deserving and worth-while organization on the campus than the Christian Association, we have fallen in line and done all in our power to aid its onward march. There is nothing that could quite take the place of the "C. A." in the life of Pennsylvania undergraduates. As sub-Freshmen, most of us received invitations to attend a conference at Green Lane. Many of us took advantage of the opportunity, and as a result we met many prominent Pennsylvanians; we learned a few of the University's many traditions, and we matriculated already filled with much of the real Red and Blue spirit. Then, it was representatives of the "C. A." who met us at the train stations and brought us out to the campus, in order not to repeat the occurrence several years before when one prospective student wandered around the city of Brotherly Love for a week before he found the institution "which is situated across from Beaston's Cigar Store."

It wasn't very long before the enthusiastic secretaries from the little offices on the second floor of Houston Hall persuaded many of our number that the first thing we should do was to enlist for some form of the association's work. Thus we started, many going week after week down to the University House to help Miss Helen I. Duncan, now Mrs. Dana G. How, in her splendid work among the people around Twenty-sixth and Lombard Streets. Some of us found ourselves in the capacity of English teachers, others as stamp salesmen, others as gymnasium leaders, and still others as athletic instructors. No matter how little we knew about the subject, our work was highly appreciated. Under the leadership of "Da-Da" How and also Mrs. How, the University House has become a great factor in Pennsylvania's life. We are proud of the work our class has done down there.

In the summer time, the work of the Settlement House was transferred to the beautiful University Camp at Green Lane. Counsellors were needed for the work every summer and 1920 once more responded very nobly. "Ham" Cunningham, "Dan" Rhoads, "Heinnie" Justi, Earl Harrison, Howard Wilson, "Clem" Darby, and "Sub" Holmes all served as fathers, waiters, nurses, and information booths to some five hundred "kids." Back in our Junior year, a new record was set for money collected in the "Kids to the Country" Campaign. A committee, composed of Earl Harrison, general chairman, Earle Van Vliet, "Ham" Cunningham, and "Heinnie" Justi, sub-chairmen from our class, succeeded in raising approximately $2,900, breaking all previous marks by over $1,000. "Stan" Stady, in managing the first Campus Jubilee in connection with the campaign, accomplished a work that will not be soon forgotten.

As usual, in such a brief record of this worthy organization, it would be impossible to name all the phases of work taken up. Intense Bible Study under the leadership of Dr. Lampe, C. A. Secretary, and Earl Harrison, student chairman, has been emphasized during the last two years. Earle Van Vliet also served well in this capacity during our Sophomore year. The Foreign Student House under C. A. Secretary Waldo Stevenson has also occupied much of our time. Here many of our number tried to meet a few of the men from other lands and to make them feel at home in the University.

Deputation work, directed by Fred Igler, received its share of attention. Neighboring churches listened with extraordinary patience while the "University boys" delivered their "sermons." This work was splendid experience and it did a great deal of good for Pennsylvania at the same time.

During the past year, of course, most of the leadership in the work of the Association fell upon our shoulders. We started the year right by backing up "Jack" Hart and "Johnny" Lovitt in sending the largest collegiate representation to the Northfield Conference, where we received much inspiration for the coming year from such men as John R. Mott, Robert E. Speer, Dean Charles Brown of Yale, and J. Stitt Wilson. The Student Volunteer Conference held at Des Moines, Iowa, was another great event of our undergraduate days. Here again, "Jack" Hart, aided considerably by some of the Student Volunteers, notably Paul Eddy, "Vic" Rambo, and Howard Frease, put Pennsylvania among the leading delegations, thanks to the assistance lent by the Philadelphia and neighboring churches and the undergraduates.

The visit of J. Stitt Wilson to the campus during March and his series of four lectures was the leading feature of a successful year.

"Mary" Gustafson was elected president of the Christian Association for the year 1919–20 and he filled the position very well indeed. In all of his work, he was given hearty support by the other members of the Cabinet, many of whom were also loyal 1920 men, as will be found by reading the adjoining list of vice-presidents.
and chairmen. The Social Service program during our senior year has been especially excellent due to the combined efforts of Dana How for the association and Stanley Stady, student chairman. Schafer ran the Student Employment Bureau for the past season and did a great piece of work.

It would be impossible to name all the 1920 men who have helped in the undertakings of the Christian Association. The committees appointed for this great work are numerous. Praise is not needed, for to those who helped, there undoubtedly came a feeling that in so doing they were indeed living an abundant life. The joy that came to us from working at the University House, from acting as counsellors at Green Lane, speaking at various churches, going to the inspiring conferences, conducting financial and Bible study campaigns, and a hundred and one other duties, is something that cannot be described. The Christian Association shall last as long as Pennsylvania. May its good work continue for the benefit of those thousands of men and women coming to dear old Pennsylvania in the future.
The first appearance of the class of 1920 on the debating floor came in our Sophomore year, when Harold Burt and John Lewis survived the preliminary tryouts and earned places on the negative team. Earl Harrison and Seymour Heilbron also qualified for the teams, but conflicting dates with the Mask and Wig show prevented them from taking part in the intercollegiates. The subject for the year was "Resolved, That the Government should exercise the power to restrict the expression of opinion in wartime." In spite of much research and preparation, the affirmative team was defeated by Columbia and the negatives were forced to bow to Cornell.

In our Junior year, we had a voice in the policies of the Debate Council with Earl Harrison as vice-president and Harold Burt as secretary. The subject for the Intercollegiate debate was "Resolved, That the Government own and operate the railroads of the United States, the present control to continue during the period of acquisition." Burt, Harrison, and Heilbron had no difficulty in proving their right to places on the teams, and were joined by Walter Seiler. Although the negative team journeyed to Cornell and convinced the judges that they had the better arguments, the affirmative team lost to Columbia.

This year with financial aid from the Franklin Society, the Debate Council has scheduled, in addition to the regular triangular contests, dual debates with Syracuse and Princeton. A Freshman team has been formed and a debate arranged with the Syracuse first year men. Harold Burt served as president of the Council and manager of the teams. The Intercollegiate debate was on the subject of "Resolved, That the United States shall intervene in Mexico to establish a stable Government." Harrison and Lewis found that other activities took up too much of their time to permit them to try for the team, but Heilbron, Burt and Seiler once more represented us on the rostrum.

THE CATHOLIC STUDENTS' COMMITTEE

This Organization has been called a committee because it was formed with the purpose of re-establishing the Newman Club, the old Catholic organization, inactive here since 1905. The Newman Club will soon be in existence again. Harold J. Ryan is chairman of the plan.

The Committee embraces the 893 men and women Catholic students of Pennsylvania, all of whom are interested in promoting in one way or another various interests of Pennsylvania and St. Bede's, the Catholic Students' Chapel. A betterment of the University's religious registration problem and the broadening of our own Employment Bureau facilities won praise, while the checking system on Catholic Freshmen helped departmental committees to lessen scholastic difficulties of our men. Pennsylvania profited by the public lectures given in Houston Hall by the Committee and welcomed the noted speakers presented.

The Committee over-crowded the Bellevue-Stratford ballroom at its annual play, "The Lion and the Mouse," in which "Tom" O'Boyle and Elizabeth Canning played the principal parts. Various socials and entertainments were held. Jack Bridgeman created St. Bede's Orchestra of twelve pieces, while Rev. William S. Murphy, a noted musician, was obtained by the Committee to coach St. Bede's Glee Club.

James P. Costello, President of the Committee, was an active worker. John T. J. Brennan, a former President, undertook the Social problem of our eight social centers. "Jack" McCarthy, our Publicity Chairman, edited the Newman Quarterly published by the Committee and circulated among twenty-six colleges in the East.

"Ray" Riling, editor of Punch Bowl; "Bunny" Servais, Intercollegiate and National Champion Wrestler; Bryan Farah, Captain of the Hockey Team; Donald Griffin, Captain of Freshman Football; and George Scanlon, Business Manager of The Red and Blue, are among our active members.

As in other activities, the Class of 1920 played an important and prominent part in the University publications. Our ranks were strengthened by the addition of several members of former classes who joined us after serving with the colors. Upon our literary shoulders fell largely the task of reconstruction. How well this was executed, the present status of the publications will attest.

When we arrived on the campus in the fall of '16, one of the many posters which attracted our attention was the one extolling the advantages of "heeling" for The Pennsylvanian. It seemed to have made an impression on some of the less skeptical of us, for a large number of black-capped Freshmen gave their names to "Art" Eissing, the News Editor, and thus signed away the greater part of their spare time. It was not long before we became acquainted with the "correct style" and with F. Harry Nack. How important we felt to know all the scandals before they appeared in print!

Just before election time we heard Earle Van Vliet, "Louie" Rose and "Phil" Schulhafer talking mysteriously about "slides," "banks" and "monkeys." So thoroughly familiar had they become with the contents of the "green book" that in April they were admitted to the secret meetings of the Board and became Night Editors. In the meantime "Bob" Gardner and "Jimmy" Meek had sold ads and subscriptions and were admitted to the Business Department. By June, "Al" Rose, "Johnny" Lovitt, "Heinnie" Justi and George Vardy had covered enough assignments and given Harry enough "Girards" to warrant their election.

In our Sophomore year more of us entered the competition and before the year was over "Ed" Pollard, E. F. Buckenmaier, Earl Harrison, "Sid" Young, "Dan" Rhoads, "Abe" Stern, "Herb" Cülves and "Ray" Owen had been added to the Editorial Staff, while "Al" Schain, "Larry" Ullman and F. M. Bialosky assumed responsibilities in the Business Department. Our class now became a strong factor in the publication and we discussed the Houston Club scandal and

The co-ed question with the rest of the Board. In the regular spring elections, Earle Van Vliet was chosen Managing Editor and "Louie" Rose as News Editor to act as right-hand men to "Art" McCarty. In the Business Department, "Bob" Gardner was promoted to Advertising Manager, while "Al" Schain was made Circulation Manager. In a short time, McCarty left us to serve in the Marine Corps and Earle Van Vliet was chosen to fill the vacancy. "Ed" Pollard moved up to the position of Managing Editor. The campus was horrified to find the editorial policy in the hands of a Sophomore, but Earle proved that he was able to keep up the paper to its usual standard.

When we returned for our Junior year, we found a war-time campus, with The Pennsylvanian as the official organ of the Student's Army Training Corps. Despite the handicap, the paper was printed as usual, but in less than a month several of us went to Officers' Training Camps. Included in this number were Earle Van Vliet and Louis Rose. In the election which followed, "Ed" Pollard was promoted to Editor-in-Chief, while "Heinie" Justi and "Phil" Schulhafer were Managing and News Editors respectively.

The signing of the Armistice and the demobilization of the S. A. T. C. followed in quick succession. On January 6th, the University opened again on a peace-time basis. "Ed" Pollard resigned his position and became Managing Editor, while Earle Van Vliet returned to the Editor-in-Chiefship. "Ham" Cunningham, who was now a full-fledged 1920 man, was given charge of the Assignment Book. However, "Art" McCarty soon returned from the Marine Corps and again became the pilot of the paper. Earle was given charge of the make-up and "Ham" continued to deal out assignments. During the year, Royal Bein and "Joe" Schwartz got their names added to the box at the top of page 2.

When election time rolled around again, Earle Van Vliet was rewarded for his efforts and the destiny of the paper was again placed in his hands. Earl Harrison was elected Managing Editor with "Dan" Rhoads to supervise the comings and goings of the heelers. The remaining editorial men found places on the Editorial Advisory Board. In the Business Department, "Al" Schain was elected to handle the purse strings, "Joe" Schwartz the circulation and "Bob" Gardner the advertising. "Bob" felt that he had to resign because of his other activities and "Wally" Kingsbury took his place. Under the new Board, the paper prospered indeed, for the five columns were increased to six and the old block letter head gave way to one of Old English type.

Among the first from our class to respond to the call of the Punch Bowl was the ubiquitous "Johnny" Lovitt who, not satisfied with The Pennsylvaniaian and the Red and Blue alone, also had humorous inclination. So faithfully did he reproduce feminine beauty and lingerie that in the spring he was deemed worthy to join the ranks of the campus "wits." In the following fall, "Dick" Hatch and "Jack" Benoliel were likewise promoted to the Board by reason of their tasty additions to the well-known brew. "Stan" Stady and "Art" Maris were elected in the spring, but the latter did not return after going into the service.

Meanwhile our business aspirants were not idle. "Joe" Stiefel soon displayed his financial ability and was added to the Business Staff, later to become Business Manager, in which position he succeeded in making both ends meet. In our Junior year "Heinie" Justi and "Johnny" Lewis put "kick" in the flowing Bowl and joined the select few of the Board. Punch Bowl received much valuable aid through the brushes of Byrd Epps, "Ray" Riling and "Charlie" Sommers, former members of the classes of 1918 and 1919 but whose studies received a setback when they went into the service. When the new policy of limiting activities was announced, "Johnny" Lovitt, who had been elected Senior President, resigned his position and "Ray" Riling was made Editor-in-Chief.

It devolved upon the Class of 1920 to rejuvenate the Red and Blue after its period of inactivity. In this we were particularly fortunate in having the aid of "Ham" Cunningham, who had received a setback in his work because of the war and became a member of our class. He soon proved his ability in using that mighty weapon, the pen, and became the Editor-in-Chief. "Heinie" Justi, "Johnny" Lovitt and "Johnny" Lewis were promoted to the Editorial Staff the first year, and were joined by Earl Harrison, “Ray” Owen and “Dick” Hatch the following year, while “Chick” Sebright was elected by reason of his photographic work. Early this year, “Ed” Pollard and “Bill” Phillips made the necessary contributions and were granted the privilege of shivering on the cold steps of the Triangle while the photographer focused his camera.

On the business end of the publication we were more than well represented by “Shorty” Scanlon and “Bud” Weiser. “Shorty” held down the position of Business Manager for two years, while “Bud” materially increased the circulation which he directed as Circulation Manager. Red and Blue had some noted ad-getters in the persons of “Woody” Clark, “Lee” Judd, “Hap” Houley, “Chet” Frey and “Charley” Babcock.

In response to the call of the RECORD, about thirty of us responded and got our first assignments from “Phil” Price. From then on it was a constant round of interviewing, selling books and going down town on errands. When the elections were announced on Hey Dey, sixteen of us had been selected to get out our annual. “Ham” Cunningham as Editor-in-Chief was given the chair in front of the big desk, with “Herb” Cälves to assist him in the make-up as Managing Editor, Howard Kreiner was made Business Manager, while “Bernie” Scheuer was given the task of selling 1,000 subscriptions. Hirshman and Jenkins were selected to handle the art work. The Editorial Department consisted of “Dan” Rhoads and “Harry” Robinson as Editors and E. R. Edgecomb, Earl Harrison, “Hap” Houley, “Ned” Ramsey and “Ed” Pollard, Associate Editors. The Business Staff was made up of Harry Keller, “Al” Schain and “Joe” Stiefel. In the fall we elected “Chick” Sebright to take care of the photographic end and promoted Harry Keller to Advertising Manager. Byrd Epps, “Ray” Riling and John Brooks, who had contributed to past RECORDS were added to our Art Department and rendered great help in that work. How well this Board succeeded can be judged by the reader of this book.

The hours we have spent working on the publications have been some of the happiest of our college days and it is with regret that we have to give them up. We cannot help feeling a pardonable pride in our work, however, and hope that coming classes will be as fortunate as we have been.

THE FRANKLIN SOCIETY

Among the praiseworthy suggestions of Dr. William McClellan, former Dean of the Wharton School, was the organization of a society, composed of both undergraduates and graduates, to encourage journalism both on and off the campus. From this suggestion grew the present Franklin Society, organized with the purpose of promoting publication work at the University, to aid students preparing for journalism and to honor the memory of Benjamin Franklin, founder of our University. As the Franklin Society was organized in the sophomore year of the Class of 1920, the class feels that it has seen it grow from its infancy and in consequence holds more than ordinary interest in it. John Lovitt, our senior president, is the only charter member of the organization who is still an undergraduate.

Ever since its organization, the Franklin Society has played a real and important part in the undergraduate life of Pennsylvania men and especially in the lives of those interested in publications. It has secured such eminent publicists as Cyrus H. K. Curtis, George Horace Lorimer, Herbert S. Houston of Doubleday, Page & Co., Dr. Talcott Williams and others of equal prominence to speak at various functions held by the Society. In our Junior year, through the efforts of this organization, the first concert of the Philadelphia Orchestra was given at the University. This year, the undergraduates had the privilege of hearing this well-known orchestra in a series of five campus concerts which were managed and arranged for by the members of the Franklin Society. This custom in itself is of great value to the undergraduates, and it is hoped that the concerts will be continued in the future. Richard A. Foley, a former president of the Poor Richard Club, gave an instructive talk on honesty in advertising at the Franklin Society’s opening smoker. Later in the year, Joseph K. Hergesheimer spoke at a dinner which was a most successful affair. In addition to these dinners and concerts the Society did a great service for the University this year by encouraging and making possible the Debating Team.

In our senior year, Earle Van Vliet, Editor-in-Chief of the Pennsylvaniaian, “Ham” Cunningham, of The Red and Blue, “Johnny” Lovitt and “Ray” Riling, of the “Punch Bowl,” became ex-officio members of the Board of Managers. The associate members elected “Dan” Rhoads “Heinnie” Justi and “Stan” Stady as their representatives on the Board of Managers. The other members of the Board were Horace M. Lippincott, Editor of The Alumni Register, Edward R. Bushnell, Editor of the Pennsylvania Gazette. Ralph Morgan, chairman of the Basketball Committee, and J. J. McCarthy. The election of officers for the year resulted in John Lovitt being made president, Earle Van Vliet, vice-president, and Edward R. Bushnell, secretary and treasurer.
THE Benjamin Franklin Post, No. 405, of the American Legion was organized by a group of University of Pennsylvania graduates and members of the University Club of Philadelphia. The main object of the organization of this Post, was to form an association of service men whose civilian interests ran in parallel lines. To this end, invitations were extended to all of the University of Pennsylvania undergraduates and all the other college men living in Philadelphia. The base hospital units which had been recruited in Philadelphia were also included, as a large number of the enlisted men in these outfits had been drawn from the student body. While the idea of a post for college men was the central object in this organization, all other eligible candidates for the American Legion were included, as it was felt that only in this way could we have a permanent post of any value. The idea took instantly, and with the co-operation of a committee of undergraduates in the University of Pennsylvania and the various base hospital units, the membership of the post within a few months passed the six hundred mark, until, at the present time, Post 405 is one of the largest and most influential American Legion Posts in Pennsylvania.

The meeting place chosen, so far, has been the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the Widener Building, where on the second Wednesday of every month a very active, energetic and entertaining meeting is held. Our first Post Commander is Colonel Alexander C. Abbott, Professor of Hygiene and Bacteriology and Director of the School of Public Hygiene of the University of Pennsylvania. Our two Vice-Commanders, one representing the Navy and the other the Army, are both Pennsylvania Alumni.

The name Benjamin Franklin was chosen as the most fitting for a post composed of such men, and the policies adopted have always been in line with our patron saint’s ideas. We were the only post in Pennsylvania who voted as emphatically opposed to a monetary bonus for ex-service men, the feeling of the large majority of the members present being that they entered the war from a spirit of patriotism which could not be compensated in money. This in no way was meant to interfere with the policies of the National Committee of the American Legion in adjusting the compensation desired for those who are really in need.

The officers of the Post are: Commander, Alexander C. Abbott; Vice-Commander, Maylin J. Pickering; Vice-Commander, Morris Booth Miller; Adjutant, Philip Scofield Shoemaker; Finance Officer, Joseph Carson; Historian, R. S. McCombs; Chaplain, Edward M. Jeffers; Insurance Officer, P. Green; and Employment Officer, Percy D. Taylor.
WHEN the 1919 RECORD went to press, the athletic program was just getting back to its pre-war basis. Never in the history of the University was there such an interest in outdoor sports as we had in the spring of 1919. It seemed that the hundreds of men who were discharged from the service and returned to College, almost every day from December on, had been so accustomed to being out of doors that it was natural for them to become candidates for some sport. Every coach, captain and manager was quick to avail himself of this spirit. A two weeks preliminary football training period brought out many men who had never before tried for a Varsity team, as well as a number of old timers who had been in the service for the past one or two seasons. Baseball, both Varsity and Freshman, flourished, and an Interfraternity League for the championship and the award of the Hammett Cup, caused members of more than twenty fraternities to participate.

In track, Coach Robertson pursued his usual policy of keeping a large number of candidates interested, and besides the regular spring handicaps a closely contested Interfraternity Meet was held for the Kendrick Cup, an innovation of which was the regulation that no man could compete who had not reported for practice enough times to satisfy the coach. Crew extended its policy of giving all men an opportunity to row, notwithstanding the fact that the boat house was swamped with men, and the general lack of facilities and equipment. Coach Wright kept the candidates rowing as long as they would report for practice, even if they did not get a place in the Varsity, Junior Varsity, 150 pounds or Freshmen Eights.

The golfers put into competition for the first time in several years the Gilbert Cup, to be competed for in the spring and fall of each year, and upon which the name of the winner is engraved, and also by a unique system men who attained a certain average of scores on the public links at Cobb’s Creek Park were allowed, through the courtesy of the Merion Cricket Club, to further develop on the latter’s course. Tennis was played even more generally than before and from the number of candidates emerged a team which won all its intercollegiate matches, except the last one to Harvard, which was lost by one point.

Soccer and lacrosse under those two enthusiastic volunteer coaches, Douglas Stewart and Clarence Goldsmith, flourished as never before, and the riflemen wound up their season with the Intercollegiate Championship of America. That this extraordinary interest held over during the summer and into the fall is very evident by perusal of the records of the various teams which will be found in another part of the Record. Men living in Philadelphia and vicinity came out to Franklin Field all summer and in the fall there were the largest turnouts for football, crew, soccer and the other sports which we have ever known.

The feature of the Varsity football season were the high scores and big crowds for the preliminary games, the setback at the hands of Penn State, and then that thrilling battle in the Polo Grounds in New York, when, backed by the constant cheers of thousands of students and alumni, we finally lost to Dartmouth by one point; the come-back of the team in playing a tie game with Pittsburgh and the defeat of Cornell on Thanksgiving Day, in which the Varsity played a brilliant game. The Freshman team went through the hardest schedule ever made up for the yearlings, and were not defeated, and only once tied.

Crew, reaping the benefit of its broad policy and pointing to its success in the previous spring, when Yale was defeated at New Haven and Princeton and Columbia on Carnegie Lake in the annual Childs’ Cup Regatta, and only being defeated by one crew in the land, the Navy, held a fall Regatta in which there competed just as many candidates as were left at the time of the races. Track, encouraged through the same policy, could point to its record of victories over the Naval Academy at Annapolis and Columbia and Dartmouth at New York, and second place at the Intercollegiates in Boston. The usual fall handicaps were held and Varsity and Freshman cross-country running was active.

Soccer, as the spring training had indicated, won another Intercollegiate Championship, and as a reward has been raised to the dignity of a major sport. Lacrosse, following up its advantage of the spring, held fall practice and when the indoor season began there was a rush of candidates for basketball, swimming, wrestling, fencing and the rifle and gymnastic teams. Our basketball team by its undefeated record has won for the University permanent possession of the Heppe cup. Ice hockey and the gun club have been revived.

The slogan raised at Pennsylvania with the coming of the War, "Sports for all," on the plea that every man was potentially a soldier and so had a duty to keep physically fit, met with an enthusiastic response from the students. Our policy of emphasizing the above fact with Intercollegiate competition merely as an incident, was endorsed as a war-time policy by the vast majority of colleges and universities in this country, and it is felt that the emphasis put upon this general participation has held over to the extent which has been outlined in such detail above. Of course, keeping on during the war in full force caused a tremendous deficit in operations, but fortunately the student alumni and public support of the football games and other events have put the finances of the Council on Athletics in such shape that with careful management another year should find this financial loss completely absorbed.

The laying out into athletic fields of the large tract of land owned by the University just south of the South Street Bridge should be a great boom to outdoor athletics. This year the crews will try the experiment of rowing from this point, doing away with the long and tedious trip to the old boat house. After the preliminary rowing is over and the regular crews are selected, it is planned to return to the boat house.

We are still living in hopes of new stands for Franklin Field to adequately handle the large crowds for football games, the relays, etc., for larger floor space which would accommodate more competitors for basketball, wrestling and similar sports, and also provide for the many people who are yearly turned away from basketball games because of the limited accommodations in Weightman Hall. Plans are being discussed to bring about both these ends and also quite definitely in regard to the erection of an Administration Building at the southwest entrance to Franklin Field.

We are satisfied that the Pennsylvania system built up through many years of careful planning and management and providing for compulsory physical education under a department with the same rank as any other scholastic department, with the option that the student may take as an elective any of the many branches of sport conducted under the Council on Athletics, with its corps of the best coaches in the country, is one now fully tried and should be the pride of every Pennsylvania man.

M. J. Pickering, Graduate Manager,
University Council on Athletics.

CAPTAIN BELL.
AFTER the short and rather unsatisfactory schedule played by the S. A. T. C. football team in 1918 we all began to look forward to the season of 1919. During the spring and summer of the year the newspapers all over the country were filled with accounts of this and that athlete who intended to re-enter college in the fall. This was true of practically every institution in the country, and at Pennsylvania probably never before was there such a galaxy of old football men who answered the initial call of the year. Coach Folwell had indeed a problem on his hands; not only that of training a team, but of selecting from this list of veterans the eleven men who would form the best working combination. Prospects for the best football season in the history of the University were indeed bright, and the opening games fulfilled all our desires as far as a successful team was concerned.

Bucknell, our first opponent, came down to Franklin Field hoping to catch us over-confident, but was forced to bow to a 16–0 score. Pennsylvania Military Academy, the next invader, was crushed 54–0, and Delaware University, which expected to give us a battle royal, was buried under an 89–0 score. Swarthmore, which had defeated us in our Freshman year and whose S. A. T. C. team broke even with us in a two-game series in 1918, was our next visitor. The little Quakers scored in the first five minutes of play, but this troubled Captain Bell and his men little, for the final score was 56–7. Lafayette came next and the final score was 24–0. The game was quite a disappointment to the maroon and white rooters, for the Eastonians only the week before had outplayed Princeton... and expected to do great things on Franklin Field. The next week we met our Waterloo. Penn State was the team to do the unexpected, as the final score was 10–0 in favor of the up-staters. Despite the fact that the field was a sea of mud and impossible for anything but straight playing, the State team clearly outplayed our Varsity and demonstrated that it was one of the best teams in the East.

The next week Dartmouth took our measure at the Polo Grounds to the tune of 20–19, although we outplayed the big green team three-quarters of the game. Three touchdowns apiece was the result of the sixty minutes of play, but the Hanoverians were able to make two goals from touchdowns to our one. “Bert” Bell made two tries at field goals in the dying moments of the game, but both missed by the narrowest margins.

Pittsburgh was our next opponent. Pitt was the one team above all that we wanted to beat, as we had not succeeded in defeating the Panthers during any of our years at the college. “Beat Pitt” was our war cry for weeks, and for the first part of the game it looked as if our hopes were to be realized. “Bert” Bell scored first with a goal from the field. The Panthers came right back, however, and before the half was over had tied the score by a placement kick. For the remainder of the game the two fighting machines struggled back and forth, but neither team could score and we were obliged to be content with a 3–3 tie. Cornell, weaker this year than usual, journeyed to Philadelphia on Thanksgiving Day, and, although the Big Red team defense was good, the Red and Blue ran up a score of 24–0 before the final whistle blew.

This game closed the collegiate football careers of many of our classmates—Captain Bell, Dieter, Alex Wray, Neylon, Titzel, Straus, Braun, Maynard, Thomas, Ellis and O'Gorman, as well as many of the legacies from former classes who donned the moleskins for the last time that day. It was Nineteen-Twenty's last undergraduate football game, but our interest in Pennsylvania’s success will never die. We can be relied on to be in the stands next season and in the years to come, ready to lend our cheers for the further glory of Pennsylvania.

THE Class of 1920 was particularly fortunate in that it was the first class to have Coach Joseph Wright as its regular rowing tutor. Two hundred candidates reported in our first year to row under the guidance of the famous Canadian oarsman. After two months of strenuous work on the rowing machines in Weightman Hall, the various crews were assigned to shells for further training on the river.

Our Freshman eight had an exceptionally good schedule that year. After a careful selection, the following were chosen to represent the class: bow, Ames; 2, Keller; 3, Robinson; 4, Davidson; 5, O'Gorman; 6, Dieter; 7, Ellson; stroke Thomas, and coxswain, Frost. There remained just four days before these untried oarsmen were to meet their first rivals, the Annapolis Plebes, when came the declaration of war. This resulted in the calling off of all further training and races.

Coach Wright issued a call as soon as we had returned from our summer vacations. All men reporting were made participants in the fall regatta, eight equally matched crews being selected and experienced men put in at stroke and number seven positions. Although many of the veterans were not on hand for the initial spring call in January, the combination developed was one of the best since the beginning of rowing at Pennsylvania. We rejoiced particularly in the fact that 1920 could boast of having more than her share of representatives on this championship eight. "Carl" Thomas was stroke.
and "Vern" Ellson, "Hex" Keller, and "Walt" Ames held down numbers 5, 2 and bow respectively. Not only did we break a record of twenty years by winning the Intercollegiate title, but also took possession of the Childs trophy for the first time since 1884.

Fall practice was not resumed, as the entire crew was in the service. However, the beginning of the college year in January found Captain Thomas and his champion oarsmen again working out on the machines in the rowing room. The veteran Varsity remained intact except for the substitution of Harden for Jack and Supplee for Jerauld. Coach Wright was well pleased with the powerful combination which he lined up as follows: bow, Ames; 2, Keller; 3, Roberts; 4, Supplee; 5, Ellson; 6, Winslow; 7, Wilson; stroke, Capt. Thomas, and coxswain, Harden.

Our first race was on the Severn, where Annapolis defeated us by three lengths. One week later we met Yale on her own course and, before one of the largest crowds that ever witnessed a crew race, defeated our rivals by five lengths. Not only had we won a decisive victory but had also broken the record for the “1 1/16” on the famous Housatonic course. The next contest, that for the Childs trophy, was held on Carnegie Lake at Princeton. Pennsylvania was again the winner, Columbia coming in two and a half lengths behind, and Princeton trailing the blue and white by three and a half lengths. Thus our hopes for a second championship were beginning to brighten. The title was to be decided in the American Henley, when we were again to meet the Navy.

The American Henley will be remembered as one of the most spectacular contests ever witnessed. We held the lead for three-quarters of a mile. Then the Navy gradually nosed ahead. Our oarsmen made a game spurt but lost by a length. This was the last race for Winslow and Wilson.

When the men of 1920 returned for their last fall practice, Coach Wright followed out the policy which he had adopted in 1917. Twelve crews were picked, with an experienced man at stroke and number seven in each boat. Manager Stimson found it necessary to install several new machines in the rowing room, as over three hundred responded to the January call for candidates. “Scrant” Gillette, “Bill” Copeland, and “Jess” Turner were added to the Varsity so that now the line-up is: bow, Ames; 2, Frank; 3, Swan; 4, Capt. Keller; 5, Turner; 6, Copeland; 7, Ellson; stroke, Thomas, and coxswain.

SCHEDULE

'Varsity and Junior Varsity Races won by Yale.

July 1. Poughkeepsie Regatta.
Gillette. The Junior 'Varsity line-up is: bow, Bedell; 2, Howell; 3, Deaver; 4, Shuman; 5, McElroy; 6, Hinkley; 7, Guenther; stroke, Prescott, and coxswain, Vanderherschen.

After our crew days have drawn to a close we will spend many happy moments thinking of the times when we were oarsmen at Pennsylvania. However, we will always miss one, "Ted" Gerhardy, who rowed on the second Freshman eight. He was killed in a naval aviation accident at Pensacola, Florida.

The Class of 1920 has made an enviable record in the support of crew. Not only have we always held the majority of the positions on the 'Varsity but we have been represented in the other boats, the Junior 'Varsity and the One-hundred-and-fifty-pound. We came at a time when rowing had just received full recognition as a sport and we leave with a feeling of satisfaction, for we now realize that over three hundred prospective oarsmen receive daily training and instruction in rowing. We feel that we have done our share towards putting Pennsylvania among the leaders in the rowing world.
CAPTAIN GUSTAFSON
THE Class of Nineteen-Twenty has made as brilliant a record for itself in track as it has in other branches of athletics, in spite of the difficulties brought about by the war.

The war fever seized upon so many of the members of the Varsity team during the spring of 1917 that it was found necessary to cancel all meets except the Annual Relay Games, which were held on Franklin Field as usual. The Freshman team, however, took up its work and completed its schedule as planned, regardless of existing conditions. The first call for candidates by Coach Robertson brought out seventy-five young aspirants clad in the variegated garments of their prep school days. Among these ambitious youths were “Sherm” Landers, “Gus” Gustafson, “Grif” Calder, Davis, Smalley, Earl Eby, Maxam, Smith, Peck, Hough and Shields; later they developed into the most consistent performers of the class. In the fall handicap meet, Eby and Landers starred: the former won the 880, while the latter breasted the tape first in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, in addition to tying for first place in the pole vault. Hough came through in great form by tying for first in the broad jump. In the Irish-American meet, Eby came within two seconds of breaking the indoor record in the 1000, and in the triangular meet—Pennsylvania, Harvard and Dartmouth—he placed second. The team won the trophy at Baltimore in the Maryland Regiment Indoor Games, where Gustafson placed second in the mile and Maxam captured the 100-yard dash. With these men to fill Varsity vacancies, prospects for the sophomore year were indeed bright.
By 1918, however, many more 'Varsity men had entered the service and the team was disrupted to such an extent that our showing in the Intercollegiates was not as brilliant as it would have been in normal times. The A. A. U. Indoor Championship was captured, the stars being Gustafson, who won the 600, and Landers, who was first in the 300. Though the record for the year was not remarkable, its redeeming feature was the rise to prominence of Gustafson, who has since proved to be one of the most consistent track performers produced at Pennsylvania in recent years.

The fall of 1918 found Mars supreme. Under the régime of the S. A. T. C., all track activity was suspended. Immediately after the armistice, indoor work was resumed and in the spring the Intercollegiates were held at Harvard, Pennsylvania losing the championship to Cornell by a margin of a few points. Gustafson in the 880, Hampton in the high jump, Landers in the pole vault, Davis in the 100-yard dash and in the 220, and Frazier in the hurdles, were high scorers for Pennsylvania. In the triangular meet between Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and Columbia, the Red and Blue was victorious. The bright feature of this meet was the hurdling of Smalley, who captured first place both in the 120 high and the 220 low. In the Annual Relays, a combination made up of Gustafson, Davis, E. Smith and Haymond placed first in the mile relay and the sprint medley relay. Frazier won the 440 hurdles, while Landers won the hop, skip and jump.

The senior year has been marked by the return from war service of Eby, who won the 600-yard dash over a field of many noted runners in the National Senior Championship Meet held at New York. The relay team composed of Captain Gustafson, Eby, Maxam and E. Smith, captured first place in the American Legion Indoor Meet at Brooklyn.

A word of praise, finally, is due Coach Robertson for his untiring zeal in training the teams which have brought, and are bringing, so much renown to Pennsylvania. Credit must also be given to the manager of this year's team, Elmer Slagle, for his efficient handling of the business end of the meet. And while bestowing praise, we must by no means fail to give it in large measure to those men who have made track history at Pennsylvania, and particularly the record of Nineteen-Twenty, so glorious.

The Twenty-sixth Annual Relay Races held on Franklin Field, April 30th and May 1st of this year, not only assembled more athletes than ever before from all parts of the country, but marked the return of our English cousins, coached by the renowned “Al” Shrub and accompanied by Colonel A. N. S. Jackson, who was the anchor man of the 1914 Oxford team. The English runners established a new world’s record for the two mile relay, winning from a field of the fastest runners in America. In these games “Sherm” Landers, of the Class of ’20 was the individual star, winning first place in the pole vault and hop, step and jump and running on the victorious sprint medley team. Earl Eby, as the anchor man of the one and two mile relay team, ran two wonderful races and brought the championship in the former event to Pennsylvania. “Sylie” Maxim ran the best quarter of the day, being timed at 48 3/5 seconds. So it may readily be seen that members of the Class of Nineteen-Twenty, past and present, played conspicuous roles in the most noteworthy of a long series of successful Relay Games.

JOHN TITZEL
"SNAP into it!" "Atta boy, now you’re coming!" "Doc." Cariss’ encouraging voice could be heard as some recruit showed signs of improvement. These expressions still linger in our memory as our first real impression of baseball at Pennsylvania. It is difficult to describe the appearance of the aspirants who reported at the first call for candidates. An odd-looking crowd we must have been, clothed in our remnants of preparatory school days.

In a short time, however, the elimination process brought the number of candidates down. The squad of sixty-seven candidates was reduced until our representatives on the diamond were: Captain Hangar behind the bat, with “Bill” Solly as his assistant at this position; “Fats” Burns covering first base; “Pat” Bohan hovering around the keystone sack, Mike Sweeney starring at short stop, and “Tillie” Walker and Manning playing at third base. In the outer garden “Bill” Cook as left fielder, Pierson at center field and Fred Wiese at right field were caring for all drives that came in their direction. For a while the big question was, who would fill the pitcher’s box. This honor was finally divided between “Joe” Mitchell, Sheffey and Harvey.

With such men things went quite smooth for a while. However, the Sophomores defeated us by the score of 5 to 2, thereby winning the Dean's Trophy. After defeating the St. Joseph's nine on May 10, 1917, our season was prematurely ended, due to half of the players enlisting for the war.

Our Sophomore year found the Varsity hard hit by the war. Only a few veterans remained at Pennsylvania. It was here that our class manifested to the student body its excellent baseball material. "Mike" Sweeney was again scooping grounders between second and third base. "Pat" Bohan was playing second base and "Fats" Burns covered the initial sack. In the outfield "Joe" Straus was caring for flies while "Joe" Mitchell occasionally filled the pitcher's box. In fact, the team was composed for the most part of Sophomores.

The season was a success, considering the chaotic condition of affairs at the time. Columbia invaded Franklin Field on "straw hat day" and met with defeat. In fact, of the eight games played we won five and lost only to Yale's undefeated nine and two service teams. Thus our class stars filled the great gap in the Varsity and registered a fairly successful season on Pennsylvania's baseball history.

Another spring arrived and found Coach Thomas' face all smiles. The prospects for the season were bright. Titzel and Sheffey, two star hurlers, were again with us. Then, too, Captain Sweeney at short and "Pat" Bohan at second were factors in the defeat administered the Crimson nine on "straw hat day." Swarthmore and Lehigh met with a similar fate. We were defeated by Princeton in a hotly contested game ending with a score of 4 to 2.

At this place it would be well to mention that many others deserve recognition for the services they rendered for baseball at Pennsylvania in the last four years, but due to the lack of space cannot be brought into the limelight. But we have not forgotten the services of A. W. Kingsbury. He was elected manager of the team at the end of his Junior year and is worthy of much praise for his efficient services. Henry Bonsall, formerly of the 1919 class, proved a capable associate.

Our last year has arrived. From appearances it seems relatively easy to predict the results of this season. With many veterans such as "Mike" Sweeney, Sheffey and Warwick back everything seems promising for a successful season.

Our new coach, "Doc" Cariss, having previously turned out many successful Freshman nines, has the support and best wishes of the student body. The class feels that it has had a big part in baseball at Pennsylvania and takes its leave with confidence that the great national game will ever hold a place of importance and prominence on the list of major sports at the University.

The schedule for the present season is one of the best ever arranged for a Pennsylvania nine. As a special attraction the University of California will appear for the first time on Franklin Field for the Alumni Day game. Indications are that Alumni Day will be a more important event than ever before and the Class of Nineteen-Twenty which is about to join the ranks of the Alumni, will have a place in the program of the day.
CAPTAIN PECK
THREE championship teams, the permanent possession of the Heppe Trophy and, finally, the college championship of America have been the contributions of basketball to the athletic history of Pennsylvania during the last four years. During the season 1920 entered, the team won the intercollegiate championship. Because of this and the increasing popularity of the game, the Athletic Council decided to add it to the list of major sports.

In its début as a major sport, however, the team failed to live up to expectation. The season opened with five straight victories, including three league games, but a mid-season slump ruined our chance to duplicate the record of the preceding year. Although we won eleven out of eighteen games, we were forced to be content with third place, Yale and Princeton going ahead of us. The redeeming feature of the season was the work of the team which represented our class on the floor. Only two defeats were sustained, one being administered by Princeton freshmen and the other by Peddie Institute. Both of these games were played away from home. Sweeney, Peck, Stannard, Davis, Hedelt and Mitchell comprised the squad.

The record made the following year was nothing short of remarkable and "Lon" Jourdet cannot be given too much credit for it. The war deprived us of most of our athletes, and basketball was especially hard hit. When the call for candidates was issued, Captain "Lou" Martin was the only veteran to respond. Jourdet, therefore, had to build an almost entirely new team. It was here that 1920 came to the front and in the opening game we found Sweeney, Stannard, Davis and Peck wearing 'Varsity uniforms. To make matters worse, Martin was hurt in the first league game and was kept out of the line-up for half of the season. His place was filled by Mitchell, and our class team of the preceding year was complete. Despite these handicaps, the team easily won the intercollegiate championship, losing but one league and one outside game. This defeat at the hands of Syracuse was retrieved in a return game when we defeated the Orange team on its home floor.

Although there was no intercollegiate league last year, the team led by "Lardie" Davis made an exceptionally fine record, losing but one game in sixteen. Peck, Sweeney, Davis and Stannard played a consistent game throughout the season. Although Davis and Stannard graduated with the 1919 class of the Dental School, they entered with us and we can claim them as members of our class. A tribute to the strength and ability of the team was given when the entire team was chosen as the all-collegiate quintet. At the close of the season, "Dutch" Peck was elected captain for the present year.

This year, with three teams having two legs of the Heppe Trophy, the competition for the championship was especially keen. After the first few games, however, it was a foregone conclusion that the cup would come to Pennsylvania. The team went through the entire intercollegiate season without a defeat and in addition won ten outside games, bringing the total up to twenty consecutive victories. The final game with Princeton was one which will never be forgotten. Four extra periods were necessary before we obtained the decision, 26–23. "Mike" Sweeney set a new individual scoring record which bids fair to stand for years when he tallied 149 points in the ten league games.

The crowning event of the season, however, was the post-season series with the University of Chicago, Western Conference Champions, for the championship of the United States. The first game, played in Chicago, was won by the westerners, 28–24, but when the two teams met in Weightman Hall the situation was reversed. This time we won a decisive victory, 29–18. This made a third game necessary, which was played on the Princeton floor. Twelve hundred Red and Blue rooters took the trip. In a game filled with thrills we won the championship by the narrow margin of one field goal. It is certain that the Class of 1920 will never forget the work which "Dutch" Peck and "Mike" Sweeney did in making Pennsylvania the undisputed champions of America.

AIDED considerably by several of 1920's most trusty "kickers," the soccer teams have established an excellent record during the past four years; in fact, the team's record was of such a high caliber during the past season that we decided that it was about time soccer was listed among the major sports. Hence it is that the sport which has brought two intercollegiate championships to Pennsylvania during the last four years has received its just recognition.

Of course, this much-talked-of record by soccer was to be expected, for the Class of 1920 has played a large part in the sport's career during our undergraduate days. In our very first year, an unusual event happened when two mere Freshmen, namely "Pat" Spencer and "Izzy" Hough, were awarded their letters for the part they played in bringing home the championship. In our Sophomore year, the team was forced to bow to the Haverford eleven after a close struggle. Great inroads were made upon soccer as well as in the other sports and as a result only three colleges, namely Cornell, Haverford and Pennsylvania, were able to place teams in the field. During that season, besides Spencer, the 1920 representatives on the eleven were Berguido, Tashjian and "Charlie" Pennell.

The war didn't discourage Coach "Doug" Stewart in our Junior year and, despite the fact that there wasn't any intercollegiate league, he placed several teams in the field and they all made records of which the University could be proud. After the armistice was signed, Earl Harrison, who tended goal on the Junior Varsity the year before, and Harry Robb, the speedy halfback, returned to the University and were given berths on the Varsity. During this year, "Carl" Berguido captained the team and still had so much time left over that he studied hard and graduated with the Class of '19.

But it was during the last season that the team made the record which made its friends seek recognition for it. With practically all of the veterans back after the war, Coach Stewart started off with an altogether unprecedented program. He placed four teams in the field while Manager "Ned" Ramsey busied himself arranging a schedule which called for over fifty games. The war did one good thing in that it brought back "Big Bill" Nassau for another season. "Bill" was given his position of captain and carried it off with honors. Not only did the Varsity go through the entire season without sustaining a defeat, but its record also shows that only one goal was scored by its opponents throughout the entire schedule of intercollegiate games. It will be a long while before we forget the last game of the season, in which we saw our honored rivals from out on the Main Line, namely Haverford, humbled before the speedier and more skilful Red and Blue combination by the score of 3—0. This brought to a close the most successful season in the history of soccer at Pennsylvania. Even the national champions, the renowned Bethlehem Steel Works team, were able to gain only a 3—1 victory. Each of the league teams was defeated in easy fashion. In most of the games, Earl Harrison, our goal keeper, was able to eat candy and catch up in his reading. Harry Robb, on the other hand, was always busy at his position in the halfback line, and fully deserved the honor he received in being selected for a place on the All-American team. Our class is sorry to lose "Pat" Spencer and "Charlie" Pennell, but we are glad that these men, compelled to drop back a class because of their work during the war, will be able to represent the Red and Blue on the soccer field another year. We hope they will bring another championship to Pennsylvania. As a class, also, we doff our hats to "Bill" Nassau, of the 1919 class, who did such excellent work not only last year but during his entire four years.

And then, we mustn't forget the work of the men "off the field." In our Sophomore year, out of the many ambitious 1920 men that reported for the position of assistant manager, "Ned" Ramsey and "Frank" Wagner were selected for further competition. Then Wagner left the University and "Ned" had all the work by himself and the position also. He became manager during our Senior year and fulfilled his position in a most unique and conscientious manner, being finally rewarded with the Manager's certificate by the Athletic Association. Earl Harrison and Harry Robb of our class won their Varsity "P" during the last year also.

And then, a word for "Doug" Stewart, whose name has been and will continue to be synonymous with "soccer." He has contributed of his time and services for the mere love of the game. His work has made him the best known University coach and he has brought much honor to Pennsylvania for the high standard of the teams he has turned out. Moreover, he does not spend all his time on the first team, but sees to it that every man who reports for the game gets a chance at some time or another. Soccer has been the only sport ever to place four teams in the field with a regularly organized schedule. Coach Stewart says that there will be five or six teams next year. We are glad for the part our class played in giving major sport recognition to soccer which has done so much for so many men and which, finally, has brought so much fame to Pennsylvania.
Minor Sports
The great war meant the discontinuance of practically every minor sport at Pennsylvania, so that the class of 1920 had the difficult task of getting the minor sport teams reorganized after the signing of the armistice. Well, indeed, was this movement conducted, for today there are more undergraduates engaged in the twelve minor sports than were before, and needless to say this has caused a sternness of competition that could result in only one thing, a better showing for Pennsylvania and more honors for Pennsylvania men. Our classmates who untiringly gave the University their services in this field deserve a word.

With the advancement of soccer to the rank of a major sport, swimming assumed the rôle of leading minor sport. Captain “Don” Leopold and “Bill” Bringhurst both represented the class among the swimmers for three seasons, while Captain “Bill” Tandy, “Dick” Harburger and “Buck” Carney were leading exponents of the water polo game. Don had the distinction of capturing the Middle Atlantic one hundred yard championship in his Junior year and the privilege of wearing a ‘Varsity “P” for his excellent work in general. The task of framing a suitable schedule for the tankmen was entrusted to “Scotty” Ulmer.

Captain “Chet” Frey, “Fred” Temple and “Thon” Downing represented Pennsylvania for four years on the lacrosse field, while “Sil” Kerfoot contributed his services for three seasons and “Bernie” Scheuer for one. George Scanlon took enough time from his Red and Blue duties to add Harvard, Navy, New York Athletic Club and Mt. Washington Club of Baltimore to the schedule.

In wrestling, Captain “Sam” Gerson proved our mainstay, for not only did he win every bout in his Senior year but he also left his Alma Mater holding the intercollegiate title in the hundred and twenty-five pound class. “Bill” Wolfe and “Charlie” Hovies also found places on the team, while Paul Kirchner proved his worth as a manager by bringing the Intercollegiates to Weightman Hall and by arranging a western trip to compete against Iowa State University.
The Gym team under the leadership of "Al" Knight, a medical classmate of ours, succeeded in finishing second to the Navy's strong gymnastics in the Intercollegiates. This meet gave our classmate, "Sam" Cooper, his Varsity "P" for his excellent work on the horizontal bar and won for him the Intercollegiate title.

Hockey was revived again during our Senior year and, thanks to the artificial rink that has been constructed in West Philadelphia, the sport appears to have a permanent place in the list of Pennsylvania's endeavors. "Don" Brett and Reese Barkalow were the only men that we can claim as classmates on the seven.

Captain "Don" Steele and ex-captain "Phil" Ten Broeck of the rifle team shot away at the bull's-eye regularly for four years and were largely responsible for bringing the National Rifle Association Championship to Pennsylvania for two years straight. "Ed" Benson was another 1920 man to find a place on the team during his last two years.

Tennis, always a popular sport, gave "Art" Kerr and Captain "Bill" Nassau a chance to win laurels, while Howard Keating as manager arranged an East-West match with the University of California.

Golf found 1920 particularly well fortified, for "Herb" Calves and former Captain "Dan" Rhoads held places on the team for three seasons, while Captain "Bobby" Rownd played for two years. "Herb" and "Dan" took turns arranging the schedules and they succeeded in putting the Gilbert Cup for the College Championship in play after a lapse of eight years.

Captain Hess was our lone representative on the fencing team for the three years, while "Chick" Sebright held the managership.

Cricket after several years of inactivity came back strong in our Senior year and under the leadership of Captain Harry Robb showed that the old English game still has a bright future at Pennsylvania.

Boxing appeared in the minor sport list for the first time in our Senior year, thanks to the influence of Major Pickering, who is the man responsible for Inter-collegiate boxing. "Heinic" Bourne and Carl Wishek ably handled the gloves.

Thus 1920 was more than well represented among the minor sports, a field in which glory and honor are not of primary importance, but where clean sport, good fellowship, and healthful exercise will always supply the needed incentive for Pennsylvania men to lend their support and enthusiasm.
Thus the development of minor sports has been the outstanding feature in the athletic history of Pennsylvania during the last four years. There is no University in the country which is paying more attention to minor sports than Pennsylvania. Frequently over one hundred candidates report for these teams and the differentiation between minor and major sports from the standpoint of student support and interest is sometimes most difficult to discern. We are confident that succeeding years will witness a continuance of this policy and that every student in the University will engage in some form of sport. The days we have spent in furthering the interests of these sports will always be recalled with pleasure.

Nineteen-Twenty takes its leave with a sense of pride and satisfaction in the part which the class has played in these most important days of reconstruction.

FRATERNITIES
THE INTERFRATERNITY AGREEMENT

AFTER a series of proposed agreements had been presented last spring, the outlook for interfraternity co-operation was exceedingly uncertain. Probably nothing could test to a higher degree the power and efficacy of a binding alliance of such nature than the hearty confidence and good-fellowship existing between the signatories. With motives that unequivocally demand that the provisions be kept “with scrupulous fidelity” our present agreement defines and rules with a clearness and conciseness that can lead only to the desired object. That object is the unconscious yet literal observance of principles. When the best interests of the University point out the necessity of a careful, dignified and open-to-all rushing season, results have shown that the fraternities respond. Each must give up some favorite project, some method that would prove advantageous to its own particular need, and, like the early lawmakers, sacrifice some selfish liberty in order that all may work together in harmony.

Ever fostering the spirit of the Agreement and imbuing the signatories with companionship and good feeling is the Interfraternity Council created by the Agreement. As a means of discussing the duties of fraternities in campus activities and taking up problems of undergraduate life, the Council has its purpose. In advocating the interviewing of deficient Freshmen by members of scholastic honorary societies and utilizing fraternities as a means of securing a better class of students, the Council supplies a much-needed power and assistance. In addition, the past season has been particularly marked by the awakening of an intense desire to mingle among fraternities, culminating in the first Interfraternity Dance held at Pennsylvania. Upon unselfish co-operation and a spirit of alliance the future of the agreement depends.

English
Clothes
TAILORED IN AMERICA FOR
JAMES McCREERY & COMPANY

A GOOD TURN!

Our English Clothes are emphatically different from any other clothing sold in New York—
Imprimis, they are different in appearance—
And secondly, thirdly, fourthly and fifthly, they are different in fabric, in pattern, in tailoring and in detailing—
If a young man would get away from that old bogey, Fogey, he'd better turn to our English Clothes!

It was a wise old sage who said that, but in spite of the wisdom of the thought, we do think that it is our great attention to the small needs of the college man that enables us so well to cater to his greater needs. The flashiness of a bold scarf would mar the symmetry and poise of an otherwise perfect attire.

The Shades of Night

Darkness had fallen several hours before on the campus of the fashionable young ladies' school. Always at this hour the headmaster stepped out for his evening walk, and to see that all was well.

The young ladies of the school were very discreet, and always were very careful to pull the window shades down tightly before disrobing. That is, all were discreet except Doris. She was not so careful.

As was his custom the headmaster looked up at the windows to see that all of the shades were down. Alas! there was one window in which the curtain was not pulled all the way down. In fact it was not pulled down at all.

Did the headmaster rush angrily to the phone in his office and tell Doris to pull down the curtain? Or did he stand there and stare up at the window, even as you and I?

He did neither. The headmaster did not even notice that the shade was not drawn, for the light was out—and so was Doris!

Entering the World Electrical

The graduate of today enters a world electrical. Gathered from the distant waterfalls or generated by the steam turbine, electric power is transmitted to the busiest city or the smallest country place.

Through the co-ordination of inventive genius with engineering and manufacturing resources, the General Electric Company has fostered and developed to a high state of perfection these and numerous other applications.

And so electricity, scarcely older than the graduate of today, appears in a practical, well developed service on every hand.

Recognize its power, study its applications to your life's work, and utilize it to the utmost for the benefit of all mankind.
